Suicide Intended:

Contemplating Suicide Gavin J Fairbairn, Gavin Fairbairn, 2003-09-02 Suicide is devastating. It is an assault on our ideas of what living is about. In Contemplating Suicide Gavin Fairbairn takes a fresh look at suicidal self-harm. His view is distinctive in not emphasising external facts like the presence or absence of a corpse, along with evidence that the person who has become a corpse intended to do so. It emphasises the intentions that the person had in acting rather than the consequences that follow from those actions. Much of the book is devoted to an attempt to construct a natural history of suicidal self-harm and to examine some of the ethical issues that it raises. Fairbairn sets his philosophical reflections against a background of practical experience in the caring professions and uses a storytelling approach in offering a critique of the current language of self-harm along with some new ways of thinking. Among other things he offers cogent reasons for abandoning the mindless use of terms such as attempted suicide and parasuicide and introduces a number of new terms including cosmic roulette which he uses to describe a family of human acts in which people gamble with their lives. By elaborating a richer model of suicidal self-harm than most philosophers and most practitioners of caring professions currently inhabit, Fairbairn has contributed to the development of understanding in this area. Among other things a richer model and vocabulary may reduce the likelihood that those who come into contact with suicidal self-harm will believe that familiarity with the physical facts of the matter, the actions of the suicider and the presence or absence of a corpse, is always sufficient to justify a definite conclusion about the nature of the self-harming act.

Assisted Suicide and the European Convention on Human Rights Stevie Martin, 2021-04-12 Locating assisted suicide within the broader medical end of life context and drawing on the empirical data available from the increasing number of permissive jurisdictions this book provides a novel examination of the human rights implications of the prohibition on assisted suicide in England and Wales and beyond. Assisted suicide is a contentious topic and one which has been the subject of judicial and academic debate internationally. The central objective of the book is to approach the question of the ban's compatibility with the European Convention on Human Rights afresh, freed from the constraints of the existing case law and its erroneous approach to the legal issues and selective reliance on empirical data. The book also examines the compatibility of the ban on assisted suicide with rights which have either been erroneously disregarded or not considered by either the domestic courts or the European Court of Human Rights. Having regard to human rights jurisprudence more broadly including in the context of abortion the research and analysis undertaken here demonstrates that the ban on assisted suicide violates the rights of a significant number of individuals to life, to freedom from torture or inhuman or degrading treatment and to private life. Such analysis does not depend on a strained or contrived approach to the rights at issue. Rather the conclusions flow naturally from a coherent logical application of the established principles governing those rights. While the focus of the book is the Suicide Act 1961 the conclusions reached have implications beyond England and Wales including for the other devolved jurisdictions and international jurisdictions. Beyond courts and legislators it will be a valuable resource for students of human rights and medical law as well as medical and legal practitioners and academics working in human rights and end of life care Suicides and Attempted Suicides in the Union Territory of Delhi Vimala Veeraraghavan,1985 The Central Law Journal,1877 Vols 65-96 include Central law journal s international law list
