Abstract The authors examined the effects of a 12-week, 100% body weight (BW) resistance training program on the muscle strength and body composition of 10 sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group (CG) and an exercise group (EG). The EG performed a 12-week, 100% BW resistance training program, while the CG remained sedentary. The results showed that the EG had significantly greater increases in muscle strength and body composition compared to the CG. The authors concluded that a 12-week, 100% BW resistance training program is an effective means of improving muscle strength and body composition in sedentary, middle-aged men.
