A Class Approach to Hazard Assessment of Organohalogen Flame Retardants National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Environmental Studies and Toxicology, Committee to Develop a Scoping Plan to Assess the Hazards of Organohalogen Flame Retardants, 2019-08-19 In the 1970s flame retardants began to be added to synthetic materials to meet strict flammability standards Over the years diverse flame retardants have been manufactured and used in various products Some flame retardants have migrated out of the products and this has led to widespread human exposure and environmental contamination There also is mounting evidence that many flame retardants are associated with adverse human health effects As a result some flame retardants have been banned restricted or voluntarily phased out of production and use This publication develops a scientifically based scoping plan to assess additive nonpolymeric organohalogen flame retardants as a class for potential chronic health hazards under the Federal Hazardous Substances Act including cancer birth defects and gene mutations

Seismicity, Fault Rupture and Earthquake Hazards in Slowly Deforming Regions A. Landgraf, S. Kuebler, E. Hintersberger, S. Stein, 2017-01-30 Palaeoseismic records and seismological data from continental interiors increasingly show that these areas of slow strain accumulation are more subject to seismic and associated natural hazards than previously thought Moreover some of our instincts developed for assessing hazards at plate boundaries might not apply here Hence assessing hazards and drawing implications for the future is challenging and how well it can be done heavily depends on the ability to assess the spatiotemporal distribution of past large earthquakes This book explores some key issues in understanding hazards in slowly deforming areas Examples include classic intraplate regions such as Central and Northern Europe Mongolia Inner Mongolia Australia and North and South America and regions of widely distributed strain such as the Tien Shan Mountains in Central Asia The papers in this volume are grouped into two sections The first section deals with instrumental and historical earthquake data and associated hazard assessments The second section covers methods from structural geology palaeoseismology and tectonic geomorphology and incorporates field evidence The Hazards of Doing a PhD Alison L.
