Education in the 21st Century examines how schools enact food policy and through doing so craft diverse foodscapes that create very different food experiences in schools The school food policy discourse is made up of an amalgamation of discourses on obesity prevention nutrition education welfarism and foodieness Whilst schools endeavor to enact policy in a variety of ways this book shows how foodieness is taken up and can only be taken up differently in different schools The book's unique contribution is to identify the discourse of foodieness and to show how this discourse whilst seemingly universal is actually situated in middle class ideas and is therefore more easily taken up by certain schools The book argues that the classed nature of foodieness leads to certain food knowledges becoming marginalized or lost and this then positions some schools in tension with their local communities resulting in widely variant food experiences for children Earl demonstrates how foodieness is taken up in schools by first exploring how the foodscape at school is shaped by policy and media sources The book then examines how foodieness is taken up by schools with different SES profiles by showing how food moves through the school day Asking critical questions on class and poverty that are often overlooked this book will be of interest to researchers academics and students working on food issues related to teaching food policy and schools in the fields of education sociology and food studies It should also be of interest to policymakers parents and teachers

Food and Cooking Skills Education FCSE is a complex mix of policy and practicality educational theory and pedagogy classroom and government policy This book shows how FCSE has been at the centre of a tussle between education and policy for decades It reviews how FCSE has grappled with various significant issues of concern that threaten to marginalise it and pose problems for educational practicalities as expectations are increased but resources are squeezed It assesses the debate about the significance and importance of acquiring practical food and cooking skills in a society where the purchase of ready made food has become commonplace and public knowledge of where our food comes from is noticeably lacking This has contributed to the escalating incidence of diet related diseases and the attendant cost to society and threatened environmental sustainability In turn governments have reacted by proposals to make practical cooking skills a statutory
