The Harmless People:

The Harmless People Elizabeth Marshall Thomas, 1989-10-23 Presents an account of an expedition into the Kalahari Desert to study the way of life of the mysterious African Bushmen and examines the effects of industrial civilization on their unique culture The Harmless People Elizabeth Marshall Thomas, 1965 Topographic Psychology Charles Raymond Snow, 2023-01-22 Contemporary psychology believes that there exists an entity called the mind whose task is to deliberately control the body. This entity is said to inhabit a dimension that is separate from the physical reality that is occupied by the brain. Were this to be true then it might be possible for the mind to survive the death of its owner and be imported into another biological or mechanical body or be elevated into some metaphysical plane. Topographic psychology dispenses with the concept of the mind. Instead it asserts that the brain is a biological machine that uses an internal world model to transform sensation into movement. This idea renders superfluous the concept of mindedness and enables human and animal behavior to be calibrated against evolution. A world model largely consists of topographic maps. Among these are a map of the proprietary territory of the brain's owner and a map of the owner's bones and muscles. Although the territory exists in the outside world while the organs exist in the internal world of the body, both maps represent pieces of the same reality. Inhabiting the model's central axis is a neural artifact called the self object which serves within the owner's thinking as a proxy for the owner. A transition from sensing to moving is called a decision. Decisions that are made in the brain are facilitated by neural artifacts which are derived from sensory input that reside within the world model. There are two fundamental kinds of artifacts: objects and connections from which larger neural structures are assembled. These include effectors which represent unitary actions by one party; transactions which represent reciprocal actions between two parties; polygon stacks which represent analogies; inferences and stories; a special polygon stack that represents the owner's autobiography; pyramids which represent referents in the outside world; and a special pyramid that represents the self object. In order to promote its owner's survival, a world model reacts to events in the external world by cycling the body between three physiological states. There are three such states: violence, sex, and work, each of which reconfigures the body so that it can optimally respond to a threat or opportunity. The Hidden Life of Life Elizabeth Marshall Thomas, 2018-03-03 An iconoclast and best selling author of both nonfiction and fiction, Elizabeth Marshall Thomas has spent a lifetime observing, thinking, and writing about the cultures of animals such as lions, wolves, dogs, deer, and humans. In this compulsively readable book, she provides a plainspoken big picture look at the commonality of life on our planet from the littlest microbes to the largest lizards. Inspired by the idea of symbiosis in evolution that all living things evolve in a series of cooperative relationships, Thomas takes readers on a journey through the progression of life. Along the way, she shares the universal likenesses, experiences, and environments of Gaia's creatures from amoebas in plant soil to the pets we love from proud primates to Homo sapiens hunter gatherers on the African savanna. Fervently rejecting anthropodenial, the notion that nonhuman life does not share characteristics with humans Thomas instead shows that paramecia can learn plants can communicate humans aren't really as special as we think we are and that it doesn't take a scientist to marvel at the smallest inhabitants of the natural world and their connections to all living things A unique voice on anthropology and animal behavior Thomas challenges scientific convention and the jargon that prevents us all from understanding all living things better This joyfully written book is a fascinating look at the challenges and behaviors shared by creatures from bacteria to larvae to parasitic fungi a potted hyacinth to the author herself and all those in between God, Gulliver, and Genocide Claude Julien Rawson,2002 We are obsessed with barbarians They are the not us who don't speak our language or any language whom we depise fear invade and kill for whom we feel compassion or admiration and an intense sexual interest whose innocence or vigour we aspire to and who have an extraordinary influence on the comportment and even modes of dress of our civilised metropolitan lives whom we often outdo in the barbarism we impute to them and whose suspected resemblance to us haunts our introspections and imaginings They come in two overlapping categories ethnic others and home grown pariahs conquered infidels and savages the Irish the poor the Jews This book looks afresh at how we have confronted the idea of barbarism in ourselves and others from 1492 to 1945 through the voices of many writers chiefly Montaigne Swift and to a lesser extent Shaw New America Dixon,1867 Where the Roads All End Ilisa Barbash,2016 Where the Roads All End tells the remarkable story of an American family's expeditions to the Kalahari Desert in the 1950s Raytheon founder Laurence Marshall and his family recorded the lives of the last remaining hunter gatherers the so called Bushmen in what is now recognized as one of the most important anthropology ventures in Africa The Harmless People Elizabeth Marshall Thomas,1959 The Melville Family and Their Bible Readings Harriet Warner Ellis,1885 New America William Hepworth Dixon,1867 The Melville Family, and Their Bible Readings Sarah Ellis (formerly Stickney.),1872 The Life of Charles Alan Smythies Gertrude Ward,1898 A Critical Essay on the Ancient Inhabitants of the Northern Parts of Britain Or Scotland Thomas Innes,1879 *Chambers's information for the people, ed. by W. and R.
