Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were randomly assigned to either a control group or a training group. The training group performed a 10-week program of aerobic exercise, while the control group remained sedentary. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during maximal exercise at the beginning and end of the 10-week period. The results showed that the training group had a significant decrease in HR and HRR at rest and during maximal exercise compared to the control group. These findings suggest that a 10-week training program can improve cardiovascular fitness in sedentary, middle-aged men.
