

Documentary Research Strategy to Research Canada

Documentary Research: Ethnographic ethnography	1. Research aims Documentary Research aims to explore and understand the experiences of individuals and groups in a particular social context. This is achieved through the collection and analysis of documents, which are defined as any written or recorded material that provides information about a particular topic or issue. This can include a wide range of materials, from official records and government documents to personal letters and diaries. The aim of Documentary Research is to use these documents to gain a deeper understanding of the social and cultural context in which they were produced and to explore the ways in which they have been used and interpreted over time. 2. Research design Documentary Research is a qualitative research method that involves the collection and analysis of documents. The design of the research is determined by the research aims and the types of documents that are available. This can involve a range of techniques, from archival research to the use of online databases. The design should also take into account the ethical considerations of working with documents, such as ensuring that the documents are properly stored and that the research is conducted in a way that respects the privacy and confidentiality of the individuals and groups involved. 3. Data collection The data collection process in Documentary Research involves the identification and location of relevant documents. This can be done through a variety of methods, including searching archives, libraries, and online databases. Once the documents have been located, they are then collected and organized into a systematic and accessible format. This may involve digitizing the documents or creating a detailed index of their contents. The collection process should also take into account the ethical considerations of working with documents, such as ensuring that the documents are properly stored and that the research is conducted in a way that respects the privacy and confidentiality of the individuals and groups involved. 4. Data analysis The data analysis process in Documentary Research involves the interpretation and synthesis of the information contained in the documents. This is done through a range of techniques, including content analysis, discourse analysis, and narrative analysis. The aim is to identify the key themes and issues that emerge from the documents and to explore the ways in which they have been used and interpreted over time. This process should also take into account the ethical considerations of working with documents, such as ensuring that the documents are properly stored and that the research is conducted in a way that respects the privacy and confidentiality of the individuals and groups involved. 5. Research findings The research findings in Documentary Research are presented in a clear and concise manner, using a range of techniques to illustrate the key themes and issues that emerge from the documents. This may include the use of quotes, tables, and diagrams. The findings should also take into account the ethical considerations of working with documents, such as ensuring that the documents are properly stored and that the research is conducted in a way that respects the privacy and confidentiality of the individuals and groups involved.
