Some Men More Perfect:

Outlines of a Philosophical Argument on the Infinite Emanuel Swedenborg, 1847 Dying to Be Men L. Stephanie Cobb, 2008-09-04 At once brave and athletic virtuous and modest female martyrs in the second and third centuries were depicted as self possessed gladiators who at the same time exhibited the quintessentially womanly qualities of modesty fertility and beauty L Stephanie Cobb explores the double embodiment of male and female gender ideals in these figures connecting them to Greco Roman virtues and the construction of Christian group identities Both male and female martyrs conducted their battles in the amphitheater a masculine environment that enabled the divine combatants to showcase their strength virility and volition These Christian martyr accounts also illustrated masculinity through the language of justice resistance to persuasion and more subtly but most effectively the juxtaposition of unmanly individuals usually slaves the old or the young with those at the height of male maturity and accomplishment such as the governor or the proconsul Imbuing female martyrs with the same strengths as their male counterparts served a vital function in Christian communities Faced with the possibility of persecution Christians sought to inspire both men and women to be braver than pagan and Jewish men Yet within the community itself traditional gender roles had to be maintained and despite the call to be manly Christian women were expected to remain womanly in relation to the men of their faith Complicating our understanding of the social freedoms enjoyed by early Christian women Cobb s investigation reveals the dual function of gendered language in martyr texts and its importance in laying claim to social power Dreams of a More Perfect Union Rogan Kersh, 2001 Through his exploration of how Americans once succeeded in uniting a diverse and fragmented citizenry Kersh revives a long forgotten source of U S national identity The Set of the Sail A.
