Hell-Bent Douglas Newton,2014-07-28 Most histories of Australia s Great War rush their readers into the trenches This history is very different For the first time it examines events closely even hour by hour in both Britain and Australia during the last days of peace in July August 1914 London s choice for war was a very close run thing At the height of the diplomatic crisis leading to war it looked very much like Britain would choose neutrality Only very late in the evening of Tuesday 4 August did a small clique in the British cabinet finally engineer a declaration of war against Germany Meanwhile Australia s political leaders deep in the throes of a federal election campaign competed with each other in a love of empire auction They leapt ahead of events in London At the height of the diplomatic crisis they offered to transfer the brand new Royal Australian Navy to the British Admiralty Most importantly on Monday 3 August an inner group of the Australian cabinet egged on by the governor general offered an expeditionary force of 20 000 men to serve anywhere for any objective under British command and with the whole cost to be borne by Australia some forty hours before the British cabinet made up its mind Australia s leaders thereby lost the chance to set limits to weigh objectives or to insist upon consultation They needlessly exposed Australian soldiers and their families to the full horror of the mechanised slaughter that was to come They were hell bent and they got there The International Reference Library ,1900 The Great Battles of the Great War \(Classic Reprint\) ,2015-07-03 Excerpt from The Great Battles of the Great War It is impossible to over estimate the service rendered to Europe by little Belgium in holding up for several days the head waters of the vast and menacing tide of the German invasion Rapidity of action is the great German asset said the German Imperial Chancellor to our Ambassador in Berlin We owe it to Belgian courage and tenacity that that asset was seriously impaired This small State which had no quarrel with any one and only desired to live at peace with its neighbours was suddenly exposed to a cruel ordeal Two days before the receipt of the German ultimatum the Belgian Government was informed by the German Minister in Brussels that Germany would respect the neutrality of Belgium Two hours before handing in the ultimatum on that memorable Sunday evening Germany s accredited representative repeated his assurance Then suddenly Belgium was confronted with a peremptory demand for free passage through her territory for the Kaiser s legions If in her weakness she had given permission who could have blamed her But with sublime heroism of soul Belgium declined though well knowing the risk and then flung herself with splendid intrepidity athwart the path of the Teutonic host She has suffered terribly by her heroic resistance Her whole national life has come to a standstill Her fields tilled by a frugal hard working peasantry have been laid waste her prosperous industries are stricken with paralysis About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
