Malcolm Muggeridge, 1972 Malcolm Muggeridge Gregory Wolfe, 1997 Wolf founder and editor of Image A Journal of the Arts and Religion draws on Muggeridge's 1903-1990 writings correspondence interviews unpublished diaries and his own friendship with Muggeridge to chronicle the long and turbulent life of the controversial writer and social critic From his socialist upbringing to his years as foreign correspondent editor television personality and convert to Roman Catholicism the author delves behind the public persona to reveal the underlying spiritual and intellectual unity that runs through the many phases of his career Annotation copyrighted by Book News Inc Portland OR The Generation that Knew Not Josef Lloyd Billingsley, 1985 Worldview, 1974 Man of the Century John Ramsden, 2002 A biographical study of Winston Churchill's post war fame and reputation what he was thought to stand for and how that reputation was constructed The book examines how Churchill's personality attitudes and vision of himself have affected our own political perception of ourselves as a nation and argues that his romantic imperial notion of Britain has contributed directly to many of the political debates of recent years particularly our attitudes in Europe Not Seeing Red Stephen Karetzky, 2002 In Not Seeing Red Stephen Karetzky examines American librarianship's attitude towards the Soviet Union from the Russian Revolution through the Cold War While focusing on the years 1917 through 1960 the work includes an overview of the subsequent period ending with Gorbachev's rise to power Karetzky's study concentrates on leaders of the library profession in the United States but also deals with American educationists as well as librarians in Britain and other countries The Great Hill Stations Of Asia Barbara Crossette, 1998-03-26 They called the refuges they created little European towns carved from rocky mountainsides or nestled in the meadows of high plateaus hill stations Colonialism came and went but the hill stations remain They are no longer European but most have not lost their unique appeal After all the plains still fry in the sun and the cities of Asia have only grown larger noisier and more polluted New generations of Asians are rediscovering hill stations and turning them into tourist resorts with luxury hotels and courses Hill stations still cling to their history and the story they tell reveals a lot about how colonial life was lived They also have a future if environmental damage and overpopulation do not destroy the forested hills and mountains that give them their spectacular settings and pleasant climates The Listener, 1972-07

Confessions of a Twentieth-century Pilgrim Malcolm Muggeridge, 1988 The spiritual parallel to his highly praised memoir Chronicles of Wasted Time Malcolm Muggeridge's confessions recount his journey to faith in an age of disbelief From his reception into the Roman Catholic Church in 1982 back to his boyhood and his college days at Cambridge from a teaching stint in Cairo to his career as a journalist in India Russia and Britain through the war years Muggeridge highlights the events that served as epiphanies or moments of revelation Throughout he records his growing disillusionment with this century's utopian dreams and the corresponding awakening of his own faith The result is vintage Muggeridge the prose is clear and lively images and descriptions are accompanied by an acerbic wit written in a tone alternately brash and self deprecating
