The Open Boat Stephen Crane,2015-01-18 A seat in this boat was not unlike a seat upon a bucking broncho and by the same token a broncho is not much smaller The craft pranced and reared and plunged like an animal As each wave came and she rose for it she seemed like a horse making at a fence outrageously high The manner of her scramble over these walls of water is a mystic thing and moreover at the top of them were ordinarily these problems in white water the foam racing down from the summit of each wave requiring a new leap and a leap from the air Then after scornfully bumping a crest she would slide and race and splash down a long incline and arrive bobbing and nodding in front of the next menace A singular disadvantage of the sea lies in the fact that after successfully surmounting one wave you discover that there is another behind it just as important and just as nervously anxious to do something effective in the way of swamping boats In a ten foot dingey one can get an idea of the resources of the sea in the line of waves that is not probable to the average experience which is never at sea in a dingey As each slatey wall of water approached it shut all else from the view of the men in the boat and it was not difficult to imagine that this particular wave was the final outburst of the ocean the last effort of the grim water There was a terrible grace in the move of the waves and they came in silence save for the snarling of the crests

Stephen Crane's "The Open Boat " - A Naturalistic Short Story Timo Dersch,2010-11-03 Seminar paper from the year 2010 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies Literature grade 1 3 University of Stuttgart course G2 language English abstract Stephen Crane recognized by modern critics as one of the most innovative writers of his generation was shipwrecked in January 1897 on board the SS Commodore The ship which was on its way from Florida to Cuba transporting a substantial cargo of weapons and ammunition sank after hitting a sandbar Crane who was heading to Cuba to work as a newspaper correspondent covering the war in Cuba survived. He made it into a small lifeboat together with three other men but only three of them should survive. Back at the shore he wrote an article about the incident which was published on the front page of the New York Press. The journalistic article is a literary approach regarding his time spent on the Commodore and his subsequent rescue. The end of the article contains a gap in the narrative at the point when the four men started to navigate their way through the rough sea and then it continues with the scenery in which they were stranded at the beach found by people who helped them.
