The Orgy:

Studies in the Psychology of Sex v6 Havelock Ellis, 2015-11-07 A man's sexual nature like all else that is most essential in him is rooted in a soil that was formed very long before his birth. In this as in every other respect he draws the elements of his life from his ancestors; however new the recombination may be and however greatly it may be modified by subsequent conditions, a man's destiny stands not in the future but in the past. That rightly considered is the most vital of all vital facts. Every child thus has a right to choose his own ancestors. Naturally he can only do this vicariously through his parents. It is the most serious and sacred duty of the future father to choose one half of the ancestral and hereditary character of his future child; it is the most serious and sacred duty of the future mother to make a similar choice. In choosing each other they have between them chosen the whole ancestry of their child. They have determined the stars that will rule his fate. In the past that fateful determination has usually been made helplessly ignorantly almost unconsciously. It has either been guided by an instinct which on the whole has worked out fairly well or controlled by economic interests of the results of which so much cannot be said or left to the risks of lower than bestial chances which can produce nothing but evil. In the future we cannot but have faith for all the hope of humanity must rest on that faith that a new guiding impulse reinforcing natural instinct and becoming in time an inseparable accompaniment of it will lead civilized man on his racial course. Just as in the past the race has on the whole been moulded by a natural and in part sexual selection that was unconscious of itself and ignorant of the ends it made towards so in the future the race will be moulded by deliberate selection the creative energy of Nature becoming self conscious in the civilized brain of man. This is not a faith which has its source in a vague hope. The problems of the individual life are linked on to the fate of the racial life and again and again we shall find as we ponder the individual questions we are here concerned with that at all points they ultimately converge towards this same racial end. Since we have here therefore to follow out the sexual relationships of the individual as they bear on society it will be convenient at this point to put aside the questions of ancestry and to accept the individual as with hereditary constitution already determined he lies in his mother's womb.

Sex in Imagined Spaces Caitriona Dhuill, 2017-07-05 From Thomas More onwards writers of utopias have constructed alternative models of society as a way of commenting critically on existing social orders. In the utopian alternative the sex gender system of the contemporary society may be either reproduced or radically re-organised. Reading utopian writing as a dialogue between reality and possibility this study examines the relationship between historical sex gender systems and those envisioned by utopian texts. Surveying a broad range of utopian writing from the nineteenth and twentieth centuries including Huxley, Zamyatin, Wedekind, Hauptmann and Charlotte Perkins Gilman this book reveals the variety and complexity of approaches to re-arranging gender and locates these re-arrangements within contemporary debates on sex and reproduction, masculinity and femininity, desire, taboo and family structure. These issues occupy a position of central importance in the dialogue between utopian imagination and anti-utopian thought which culminates in the great
