Fiction and Narrative Derek Matravers, 2014-04-24 For the past twenty years there has been a virtual consensus in philosophy that there is a special link between fiction and the imagination In particular fiction has been defined in terms of the imagination what it is for something to be fictional is that there is some requirement that a reader imagine it Derek Matravers argues that this rests on a mistake the proffered definitions of the imagination do not link it with fiction but with representations more generally In place of the flawed consensus he offers an account of what it is to read listen to or watch a narrative whether that narrative is fictional or non fictional The view that emerges which draws extensively on work in psychology downgrades the divide between fiction and non fiction and largely dispenses with the imagination In the process he casts new light on a succession of issues on the paradox of fiction on the issue of fictional narrators on the problem of imaginative resistance and on the nature of our engagement with film
