Teacher Learning In Language Teaching:

Teacher Learning in Language Teaching Donald Freeman, Jack C. Richards, 1996-02-23 This book introduces a new field of educational research called teacher learning as it applies to the teaching of languages. Up until recently the study of second language teacher education has focused mainly on the knowledge base and specific skills needed for effective teaching. This book invites us to look at teacher education from a fresh point of view through an exploration of the thinking and learning processes of individuals as they learn to teach. Seventeen original articles based on studies done in North America, Europe, Asia and Australia provide examples of pioneering research into the ways that individuals learn to teach languages and the roles that previous experience, social context and professional training play in the process. The collection thus helps establish a research base for this newly developing field.

Becoming a (Better) Language Teacher Nora Benitt, 2015-08-19 This qualitative interpretative study investigates a cohort of twelve English teachers enrolled in the M A programme E LINGO Teaching English to Young Learners. The aim is to explore if how and under what circumstances classroom action research a core component of the programme can foster teacher learning. Since the participants have different educational and cultural backgrounds and various levels of professional experience in the field of language teaching they offer different perspectives on the object of research. Data from multiple sources are triangulated and interpreted to elicit indicators for learning and development in the form of critical learning incidents. The results suggest that not only cognitive but also social and affective factors constitute the complex process of teacher learning.

Professional Development for Language Teachers Jack C. Richards, Thomas S. C. Farrell, 2005-04-04 This much needed text provides a coherent and strategic approach to teacher development. Language in Language Teacher Education H. R. Trappes-Lomax, Gibson Ferguson, 2002-01-01 This volume explores the defining element in the work of language teacher educators: language itself. The book is in two parts. The first part holds up to scrutiny concepts of language that underlie much practice in language teacher education yet too frequently remain under examined. These include language as social institution, language as verbal practice, language as reflexive practice, language as school subject and language as medium of language learning. The chapters in the second part are written by language teacher educators working in a range of institutional contexts and on a variety of types of program including both long and short courses, both pre-service and in-service courses and teacher education practice focusing variously on metalinguistic awareness for teachers, language improvement and classroom communication. The unifying factor is that collectively they illuminate how language teacher
