Teachers And Power:

Teacher-Student Power Relations in Primary Schools in Hong Kong Mei-Yee Wong, 2014-12-11 This book examines from a sociological perspective teacher student power relations in classroom learning and teaching The case study consists of four Hong Kong primary schools and sixteen classrooms therein that were selected as research sites to explore the concept of teacher student power relations Observations individual interviews and document analysis were the main data collection methods employed Wong provides the historical context for the issue of teacher student power relationship by reviewing the traditional Chinese cultures and values in particular the values of respect for authority and for teachers and demonstrates the intermingling of Chinese and Western cultures in contemporary Hong Kong Chinese society She reviews the major educational initiatives carried out in Hong Kong since the 1970s showing how Western educational policies promoting student centric teaching modes have encouraged changes in classroom culture With reference to the observed seventy three lessons the study identified three patterns of teacher student power relations Teacher Domination Relatively Balanced Opportunity for Power Sharing and Student Self Empowerment each involving different degrees of power being exercised by teacher and students The coexistence of these three power patterns and the two corresponding power situations student empowerment and disempowerment can be explained as the result of multileveled intertwined interactions among six factors related to social culture education policy school and classroom contexts and to the individual players concerned The book thus contributes to the understanding of teacher student power relations in the context of Hong Kong by proposing a theoretical framework that reflects local socio cultural educational and school contexts The Co-Teaching Power Zone

Teacher Education and the Political Matthew Clarke,Anne Phelan,2017-01-12 Teacher Education and the Political is a striking book which addresses the nature and purpose of teacher education in a global context characterised by economic and political anxieties around declining productivity and social inclusion These anxieties are manifested in recent policy developments such as the promotion of professional standards the deregulation and marketisation of teacher education and the imposition of performance related regimes that tie teachers pay to outcomes in high stakes testing The book assesses the implications of such policies for the work of teachers as well as for teacher educators and those undertaking initial teacher training It is argued that these policy moves can be read as a depoliticising and de intellectualising of teacher education In this context they illustrate how contemporary theory can provide a language for critiquing recent developments and imagining new trajectories for policy and practice in teacher education Drawing on the work of theorists from Derrida and Mouffe to Agamben and Lacan this book argues for the need to maintain a space for intellectual autonomy as a critical dimension of the ethico political work of teachers Together these ideas and analyses provide examples of the power of negative thinking illustrating its capacity to unsettle comfortable truths and foreground the political nature of teacher education Current teachers teacher educators and school leaders will be particularly interested readers alongside those concerned with policy in the wider educational landscape School Power James P. Comer, 1995 First published in 1980 and now considered a classic School Power was the first book to demonstrate the positive effect of applying powerful psychological social and institutional forces on the performance of administrators teachers parents and students It shows how a university a public school system and parents worked together to move problem schools to an exceptional level of social and academic achievement Now reissued with a new preface and epilogue and a foreword by Marian Wright Edelman School Power describes in detail the way that educators can use the knowledge of social and behavioral science and education to overcome poor motivation low self esteem discipline problems and serious learning disabilities
