Wolfe, Ofer Gal, 2010-04-07

It was in 1660s England according to the received view in the Royal Society of London that science acquired the form of empirical enquiry we recognize as our own an open collaborative experimental practice mediated by specially designed instruments supported by civil discourse stressing accuracy and replicability Guided by the philosophy of Francis Bacon by Protestant ideas of this worldly benevolence by gentlemanly codes of decorum and by a dominant interest in mechanics and the mechanical structure of the universe the members of the Royal Society created a novel experimental practice that superseded former modes of empirical inquiry from Aristotelian observations to alchemical experimentation This volume focuses on the development of empiricism as an interest in the body as both the object of research and the subject of experience Re embodying empiricism shifts the focus of interest to the life sciences medicine physiology natural history In fact many of the active members of the Royal Society were physicians and a significant number of those disciples of William Harvey and through him inheritors of the empirical anatomy practices developed in Padua during the 16th century Indeed the primary research interests of the early Royal Society were concentrated on the body human and animal and its functions much more than on mechanics Similarly the Acad mie des Sciences directly contradicted its self imposed mandate to investigate Nature in mechanistic fashion devoting a significant portion of its M moires to questions concerning life reproduction and monsters consulting empirical botanists apothecaries and chemists and keeping closer to experience than to the Cartesian standards of well founded knowledge These highlighted empirical studies of the body were central in a workshop in the beginning of 2009 organized by the unit for History and Philosophy of Science in Sydney The papers that were presented by some of the leading figures in this area are presented in this volume THE Journal, 2002 Resources in Education, 1999-04 C++ how to Program Paul J. Deitel, Harvey M. Deitel, 2008 Introduces the fundamentals of object oriented programming and generic programming in C Topics include classes objects and encapsulation inheritance and polymorphism and object oriented design with the UML Intergenerational Arts in the Nursing Home Patch Clark, 1991-09-25 Since the early 1970s there has been a surge of interest in using the arts as a vehicle to facilitate interaction between young and old Intergenerational Arts in the Nursing Home examines some of the programs that have been tested and proven effective Because sources of funding have become less secure in the late 1980s and early 1990s Patch Clark examines other ways to support maintain and further develop these valuable programs Educational programs based in the social studies home economics social skills as well as the arts and language arts are described To assist those hoping to implement similar programs key components of successful programs are discussed in considerable detail Information concerning fundraising including a step by step guide to intergenerational interagency grant writing is provided Ideas and simulated activities designed to prepare the general public for intergenerational activities such as training in the public schools pretraining in the nursing home and awareness training through literature are presented Two chapters examine mutually enjoyable intergenerational activities in drama writing poetry movement dance and music The appendixes include an annotated bibliography plays and worksheets and charts for some of the many projects suggested in this volume Clark s book reaches across the arts ages and curricula and succeeds in combining talents in the arts and academics for a mutually beneficial intercurricular intergenerational experience It should be required reading for retirement and senior center activity directors and teachers at all levels interested in facilitating intergenerational interaction

Appalachia's Children: The Challenge of Mental Health David H. Loeff, 1971 The analysis of the developmental experiences and resulting personality patterns of Southern Appalachian children is based upon fieldwork in psychiatric clinics in eastern Kentucky where diagnostic evaluation and treatment were provided for emotionally disturbed children Observations on the mental health or mental disorder of the children are made concurrently with and in the light of observations on the ways in which eastern Kentucky families raise their children and on the kinds of adjustments to life that these children make The historical geographic and socioeconomic characteristics of the region in addition to characteristic family life styles and child rearing practices are presented as the necessary context for understanding the children s mental health problems Mental disorders are viewed largely as social phenomena and mental health or disorder is seen as firmly embedded in the social matrix The study of family structure and interrelationships reveals three prominent themes influential in child development emphasis on infancy of the children and family closeness poor development of verbal skills and the consideration of sexual maturation and functioning as a tabooed topic Instances of emotional disturbance discussed are grouped accordingly dependency themes communication patterns and psychosexual themes Kw
