Teacher Personal Theorizing:

Teacher Personal Theorizing E. Wayne Ross, Jeffrey Cornett, Gail McCutcheon, 1992-09-09 This book examines the relationship between teacher theorizing and teacher action as illustrated by the curricular and instructional practices of teachers. The authors show that all teaching is guided by theory developed by the teachers. Teachers could not begin to practice without some knowledge of the context of their practice and without ideas about what can and should be done in those circumstances. In this sense teachers are guided by personal practical theories that structure their activities and guide them in making decisions. This literature is very significant in explaining and interpreting many phenomena of schooling such as why teachers alter curriculum documents and other policies. How inservice education can be improved, how supervisors can help teachers to improve their practices and how administrators can become leaders to improve education. This perspective has broad and specific implications for every facet of education. Those interested in teacher education and development in supervision in curriculum and in administration will find it especially relevant.

The Journal of Curriculum Theorizing, 1982 Self-study for Teacher Educators Anastasia Pantelides Samaras, 2002 Samaras teacher education The Catholic U of America Washington D C discusses the need for professors to practice self study, the critical examination of one's actions and the context of those actions in their teaching practices in order to improve their students learning experience. She explains her own experiences in self study as an educator and her design and utilization of a Vygotskian based model to change the shape of teacher education. She describes two case studies using this model, one inside and one outside the teacher education classroom. The author explores the implications of using self study and Vygotskian principles in teaching and the benefits of such work for both students and professors. No subject index. Imagining a Renaissance in Teacher Education Cheryl J. Craig, Louise F. Deretchin, 2008 Imagining a Renaissance Teacher in Education encompasses a wide swath of topics ranging from the need to discuss the psychic rewards of teaching and adding care to the vision of education to the revamping of particular courses and apprising student teachers of their legal rights before placing them in schools. With chapters written by internationally acclaimed teacher educators and with the voices of teachers, children, and principals are threaded throughout this book, offers principles of teacher education practice that have been gleaned over time from an international meta analysis.

Stories Out of School James L. Paul, Terry Jo Smith, 2000-04-03 The changes in how we understand and study teaching and learning are uneven. Strongly held beliefs support the changes and equally strongly held beliefs challenge them. However, the discourse about teaching and learning and our understandings of the nature of educational research have changed rather dramatically in the last two decades. These changes form the context for the work described in this book on stories out of school adult memories of their teachers. The authors have been guided by the work of Jackson 1992, Noddings 1992, Eisner 1998, Palmer 1998, Coles 1989, and Lindley 1993 among others who have focused on the qualities of life experienced by children particularly in the classroom. Interests have centered on memory, meaning, and the self in relationship. Using a database of letters written by adults most of whom are teachers or are preparing to be teachers to their former teachers, the authors examine the interpersonal spaces shared by teachers and students and the kinds of unacknowledged pedagogies created in those spaces. They are interested in the ethics of experienced pedagogies and the implications of those pedagogies for educating teachers.

Those who Can, Teach Kevin Ryan, 1998 Challenging Orthodoxy in Special Education Deborah J. Gallagher, 2004 Discusses some of the core philosophical concepts in special education. This title provides educators with tools to grasp the issues in special education for an inclusive, equitable, and democratic education for all students. It is of interest to professionals and students in special education, disability studies, and educational administration.

For Education Wilfred Carr, 1995 In this text Carr provides a justification for reconstructing educational theory and research as a form of critical inquiry. In doing this he confronts such philosophical questions as what is educational theory, what is an educational practice, and how are theory and practice related.

Curriculum and Teaching, 2000 Education, Research and Perspectives, 1993 Going by the Book Jane Isenberg, 1994-06-30 The plight of the new teacher has changed little during the last 30 years. Neophytes still confront the same conflicting demands to foster students' academic development while controlling their behavior often in crowded classrooms in ill equipped and poorly administered schools. Thanks to five books Isenberg, a 30 year veteran of urban classroom teaching found solace and support. The five books are Up The Down Staircase, Teacher How Children Fail, To Sir With Love, and 36 Children. As teaching narratives these best selling writings of classroom teachers are a precious legacy of wisdom, inspiration, and experience. Going By The Book is the first published account of the role of teaching narratives in the ongoing professional development of a working teacher. It also serves to illustrate the importance of shared stories in
