The Paul Laurence Dunbar Reader:

The Paul Laurence Dunbar Reader Paul Laurence Dunbar, 1975 The Paul Laurence Dunbar Reader Paul Laurence Dunbar, 1975 The Oxford Encyclopedia of American Literature Jay Parini, 2004 The Encyclopedia of American Literature gathers together 350 essays from over 190 leading scholars on the whole of American literature from European discovery to the present. At the core of the Encyclopedia lie 250 essays on poets, playwrights, essayists, and novelists. Figures such as Whitman, Melville, Faulkner, Frost, and Morrison are discussed in detail, with each examined in the context of his or her times. An assessment of the writer's current reputation, a bibliography of major works, and a list of major critical and biographical works about the writer. Fifty entries on major works such as Moby Dick, Song of Myself, Walden, The Great Gatsby, The Waste Land, Their Eyes Were Watching God, Death of a Salesman, and Beloved place the work in its historical context and offer a range of possibilities with regard to critical approach. The Encyclopedia also contains essays on literary movements, periods, and themes, pulling together a broad range of information and making connections between them. Each entry has its own primary and annotated secondary bibliography, and a system of cross references helps readers locate information with ease. The Encyclopedia of American Literature is an outstanding reference source for students studying authors or particular pieces of literature, libraries looking for one comprehensive source, and readers interested in American literature, its authors, and its connection with various areas of study.

Language, Race, and Social Class in Howells's America Elsa Nettels, 2021-10-21. No other American novelist has written so fully about language, grammar, diction, the place of colloquialism and dialect in literary English, the relation between speech and writing, as William Dean Howells. The power of language to create social, political, and racial identity was of central concern to Americans in the nineteenth century, and the implications of language in this regard are strikingly revealed in the writings of Howells, the most influential critic and editor of his age. In this first full-scale treatment of Howells as a writer about language, Elsa Nettels offers a historical overview of the social and political implications of language in post-Civil War America. Chapters on controversies about linguistic authority, American versus British English, literary dialect, and language and race, relate Howells's ideas at every point to those of his contemporaries from writers such as Henry James, Mark Twain, and James Russell Lowell to political figures such as Theodore Roosevelt, Henry Cabot Lodge, and John Hay. The first book to analyze in depth and detail the language of Howells's characters in more than a dozen novels, this path-breaking sociolinguistic approach to Howells's fiction exposes the fundamental contradiction in his realism and in the America he portrayed. By representing the speech that separates standard from nonstandard speakers, Howells's novels, which champion the democratic ideals of equity and unity, also demonstrate the power of language to reinforce barriers of race and class in American society. Drawing on unpublished letters of Howells, James Lowell, and others, and on scores of articles in nineteenth-century periodicals, this work of literary criticism and cultural history reaches beyond the work of one writer to address questions of enduring importance to all.

already struck his friends in Ohio and Indiana in Kentucky and Illinois They had felt as I felt that however gifted his race had proven itself in music in oratory in several of the other arts here was the first instance of an American negro who had evinced innate distinction in literature In my criticism of his book I had alleged Dumas in France and I had forgetfully failed to allege the far greater Pushkin in Russia but these were both mulattoes who might have been supposed to derive their qualities from white blood vastly more artistic than ours and who were the creatures of an environment more favorable to their literary development So far as I could remember Paul Dunbar was the only man of pure African blood and of American civilization to feel the negro life aesthetically and express it lyrically Catalogue of Title Entries of Books and Other Articles ,1899
