Performance and Imagination Katerina Philippides, 2025-04-21 This is an original study of the notion of space in surviving New Comedy plays by Menander Plautus and Terence informed by theoretical discussion on its specific categories The main focus is on scenic space what the audience sees and extra scenic space what they imagine with additional consideration of stage space where the actors perform these space distinctions permeate the book There are illustrative examples of the use of the stage door performed interior scenes audible off stage events speaking back into the house or gate keeper scenes scenes of distant and remembered space deathbed scenes and proxemics characters movements on stage The second half of the book discusses places of isolation places characters return to metatheatrical space men's and women's space imaginary space etc The primary interest lies in interpreting dramatic texts as texts that contain their own performability New insights and solutions are frequently proposed regarding long debated issues of stage action One conclusion to emerge is that rather than hindering playwrights the austere set of New Comedy succeeds in rendering a vibrant world replete with the multifarious manifestations of public and private life      Catalogue of the General Assembly Library of New Zealand New Zealand.
