Suez 1956 The Crisis And Its Consequences:

Suez 1956 William Roger Louis, Roger Owen, 1989 This is an analysis based on newly available evidence of the Suez crisis of 1956 its origins and its consequences The contributors are all leading authorities and some were active participants in the events of 1956 offering personal reflection as well as an assessment of the decisions that were made The opening chapters trace the origins of the crisis from the British occupation of Egypt the failure to resolve the problem of Palestine and the Baghdad Pact of 1955 which divided the Middle East into two opposing camps Part Two deals with the crisis itself before and during the invasion of Egypt by British French and Israeli troops in November 1956 What type of regime did the British hope to install in place of Nasser's? Why did the invasion come to an abrupt and humiliating halt? Why did the American government insist on the withdrawal of these troops? These questions are among the issues discussed in the third part of the book which also deals with the impact of the crisis on French and British decolonization the special relationship between Britain and the United States de Gaulle's reaction to the Anglo Saxons and the legacy of Nasser's influence in the Middle East today Of the contributors who were personally involved at the time of the crisis Amin Hewedy was on the Egyptian General Staff Mordechai Bar On was Ben Gurion's aide de camp Robert Bowie was United States Assistant Secretary of State and Adam Watson was head of the African Department of the British Foreign Office A conclusion by Albert Hourani offers systematic answers to questions raised throughout the book CONTRIBUTORS Mordechai Bar On Hebrew University Jerusalem Lord Beloff All Souls College Oxford Robert R Bowie Harvard University John C Campbell former Deputy Director of Eastern European Affairs and on the Policy Planning Staff of the US State Department Ali E Hillal Dessouki Cairo University Howard Dooley Western Michigan University Hermann Eilts Boston University Michael Fry University of Southern California Sarvepalli Gopal Jawaharlal Nehru University New Delhi Amin Hewedy Cairo University was Political Counsellor to President Nasser Albert Hourani St Antony's College Oxford J C Hurewitz Colombia University Rashid I Kalidi University of Chicago Diane B Kunz Yale University Keith Kyle Royal Institute of International Affairs London Wm Roger Louis University of Texas Peter Lyon University of London J D B Miller Australian National University Roger Owen St Antony's College Oxford Shimon Shamir Tel Aviv University Maurice Vaisse University of Rheims Adam Watson University of Virginia Suez 1956 William Louis, 1989 The Quarterly Index Islamicus, 1993 Vrede en veiligheid, 2006 Points of Similarity and Divergence in the 1882 and 1956 British Interventions in Egypt Lindsay Frederick Braun, 1997 Presidential Lightning Rods Richard J. Ellis, 1994 Choice Outstanding Title H R Haldeman President Nixon's former chief of staff is said to have boasted Every president needs a son of a bitch and I'm Nixon's I'm his buffer and I'm his bastard I get done what he wants done and I take the heat instead of him Richard Ellis explores the widely discussed but poorly understood phenomenon of presidential lightning rods cabinet officials who take the heat instead of their bosses Whether by intent or circumstance these officials divert criticism and blame away from their presidents The phenomenon is so common that it's assumed to be an essential item in every president's managerial toolbox. But Ellis argues such assumptions can oversimplify our understanding of this tool. Ellis advises against indiscriminate use of the lightning rod metaphor. Such labeling can hide as much as it reveals about presidential administration and policymaking at the cabinet level. The metaphor often misleads by suggesting strategic intent on the president's part while obscuring the calculations and objectives of presidential adversaries and the lightning rods themselves. Ellis also illuminates the opportunities and difficulties that various presidential posts especially secretaries of state, chiefs of staff and vice presidents have offered for deflecting blame from our presidents. His study offers numerous detailed and instructive examples from the administrations of Truman, Dean, Acheson, Eisenhower, Richard Nixon, John Foster Dulles, Herbert Brownell and Ezra Taft Benson. LBJ, Hubert Humphrey, Ford, Henry Kissinger and Reagan. James Watt. These examples Ellis suggests should guide our understanding of the relationship between lightning rods and presidential leadership, policymaking and ratings. Blame avoidance he warns does have its limitations and may even backfire at times. Nevertheless, President Clinton and his successors may need to rely on such tools. The presidency, Ellis points out, finds itself the object of increasingly intense partisan debate and microscopic scrutiny by a wary press. Lightning rods can deflect such heat and help the president test policies, gauge public opinion and protect his political power and public image. Ellis's book is an essential primer for helping us understand this process.

The Arab Middle East and the United States Burton Ira Kaufman, 1996. Kaufman also details the impact of the cold war on U.S. Arab relations. In his view, Washington's abiding concern with communist expansion after 1945 pervaded and perverted the U.S. approach to the Arab Middle East. Combined with the rise of Arab nationalism, Kaufman argues, the hardening of the cold war led to an American myopia regarding the Middle East that a more regional perspective might have avoided.

Egypt and Her Neighbours, 2005. A Concise History Of The Middle East Arthur Goldschmidt, 1999. As an introduction to the history of this turbulent region from the beginnings of Islam to the present day, the book is distinguished by its clear style, broad scope and balanced treatment. Written for college students, the text assumes no prior knowledge of Middle Eastern history. It focuses on the evolution of Islamic institutions and culture, the influence of the West, the modernization efforts of Middle Eastern governments, the struggle of various peoples for political independence, the course of the Arab-Israeli conflict, the reassertion of Islamic values and power, the aftermath of the Gulf War and issues surrounding the Palestinian Question. The sixth edition also includes a detailed and updated chronology of events from 570 to 1994, a glossary of names and terms and a bibliographic essay listing books and other sources that will prove helpful to both teachers and students.

Paths Not Taken Jonathan M. Nielson, 2000-02-28. In America's foreign affairs, there has been a delicate balance between often conflicting imperatives of interests, ideals and power. How these imperatives have intersected to shape the constellation of American foreign policy decisions throughout the nation's history and indeed how they have served to advance or subvert attainment of America's regional, hemispheric and global ambitions is the subject of this study. This collection of essays explores seminal decisions in American foreign policy and diplomatic history from the early National period to the Vietnam War each of which proved to be a turning point and then asks readers to consider alternative futures based upon different courses of action Nielson underscores how history could and perhaps should have been different U S foreign policy has in large measure been contingent upon decisions made by individuals in positions of power Their personalities characters and assumptions about duty and America s role in the world have uniquely shaped policy choices and thus the course of foreign affairs for better or worse This book hopes to show that history is ever fluid unpredictable and problematic It will complement traditional texts as a what if counterpoint which will stimulate interest in and speculation about leadership roles national interest and decision making in foreign policy British Book News British Council,1991 Includes no 53a British wartime books for young people Encyclopedia of Leadership George R.
