Standing All The Night Through:

Extreme Religious Behaviours Johannes Bronkhorst, 2024-06-17 Certain religious behaviours clearly reduce biological fitness These behaviours include celibacy along with various forms of asceticism and rituals that harm the performer Such behaviours are found in widely different cultures How is this possible This book shows that these behaviours as is religion in general are by products of features of the human mind whose evolutionary fitness is beyond doubt and explores those features Which are those features This book proposes a twofold answer It draws attention to the layered nature of human consciousness in which different manners of experience are superimposed on each other This goes a long way toward accounting for the universal religious belief in some kind of transcendental world a higher reality different from ordinary reality The layering of consciousness comes about in childhood and gains in prominence with the acquisition of a first language which is the second feature highlighted in this book Together these features explain a variety of normal religious behaviours and beliefs and account for the possibility of mystical experience They also explain the occurrence of behaviours that do not augment evolutionary fitness
