Mind, Brain, and Education in Reading Disorders Kurt W. Fischer, Jane Holmes Bernstein, Mary Helen

Immordino-Yang, 2007-05-17 One of the key topics for establishing meaningful links between brain sciences and education is the development of reading. How does biology constrain learning to read? How does experience shape the development of reading skills? How does research on biology and behaviour connect to the ways that schools, teachers and parents help children learn to read, particularly in the face of disabilities that interfere with learning? This book addresses these questions and illuminates why reading disorders have been hard to identify. How recent research has established a firm base of knowledge about the cognitive neuroscience of reading problems and the learning tools for overcoming them and finally what the future holds for relating mind, brain and education to understanding reading difficulties. Connecting knowledge from neuroscience, genetics, cognitive science, child development, neuropsychology and education, this book will be of interest to both academic researchers and graduate students.

The Plague Dogs Richard Adams, 2015-09-03 Two dogs, Snitter and Rowf, escape from a research laboratory in the Lake District where it is wrongly supposed they have been purposely infected with a deadly virus and now pose a dangerous threat to the human population. As the authorities give chase, the two friends make their way through the hills and across the moors, learning to survive on their wits and finding friendship and help from a fox they encounter. They dream of finding their original owners and a safe haven, but the hunt is on. A lyrical and engrossing tale, The Plague Dogs is a remarkable journey into the hearts and minds of two canine heroes.

Africa, UK, and Ireland Rinos Mwanaka, 2018-06-12 Africa, UK and Ireland Writing: Politics and Knowledge Production comprises 6 scholarly nonfiction essays, 7 short stories, 67 poems and 2 plays from writers and poets based in the UK, Africa and Ireland, the diasporas. It focuses on politics and knowledge production, acting as a vehicle in which the production of new knowledge between these three regions/countries intersects in the literary sphere. It dissects the scientific methods of producing knowledge through the act of producing new knowledge; it looks at the management of knowledge, the processing and sharing of knowledge and dissects artistically and critically. It further stresses the importance of the ownership of knowledge and how this knowledge shapes politics. The collection contains work from up and coming poets and writers alongside established ones; also included are pieces from academic scholars, essayists, poets, writers of fiction, playwrights. Africa, UK and Ireland Writing: Politics and Knowledge Production will prove useful to literary and language theorists, poetry collections, political sciences, social sciences and human sciences, general academia and readers, education departments and students.
