Speech Of The Birds:

Ezra Pound's Early Verse and Lyric Tradition Robert Stark, 2012-10-31 Traces the lyricism and musicality in Pound's early verse through to his radical Modernist style

How Mockingbirds Are Donald Bahr, 2011-06-24 The power of mockingbirds and the enduring significance of indigenous ceremonial speeches are deftly revealed in this brilliant analysis of ritual orations created and delivered by the O'odham people also known as the Pima Papago. Making their homes along the Akimel rivers and across the arid expanses and mountains of the desert of southern Arizona and northern Sonora, the O'odham people traditionally lived in small villages with scattered brush-walled round houses. Public ceremonies involved many villages and centered around small brush-walled rainhouses. One hundred years ago, two very different versions of a speech delivered during rain ceremonies were heard at these rainhouses. The Pimas Akimel O'odham told of nearly silent and stately events: the calming of a heaving earth, the building of a house on the stilled land, the breathing out of smoke, and the coming of gentle rain. In marked contrast, the Papagos Tohono O'odham told of how raucous, drunken people caused clouds to rise and explode with rain like vomiting drunks. Both stories featured mockingbirds and both involved the coming of rain. Today, the gentler Pima version is extinct, while the wilder Papago story endures. Why? Drawing upon a rich reservoir of O'odham oral traditions and ceremonial performances, a meticulous deciphering of particular texts, and an insightful assessment of the impact of Christianity upon the O'odham people, Donald Bahr offers a brilliant analysis of why some indigenous stories cease to be relevant and told. The clues lie in the very different trajectories of the Pima and Papago communities in the late nineteenth and twentieth centuries, trajectories resulting in part with how Christianity fared in the respective communities.

Uttering the Word Armando Maggi, 1998-09-17 Employing contemporary theoretical perspectives, Uttering the Word provides the first detailed analysis of the language and thought of Maria Maddalena de Pazzi, 1566-1607, an important but neglected Renaissance mystic. Borrowing from Lacan, de Certeau, and Deleuze, Maggi analyzes de Pazzi's unique mystical discourse and studies how the Florentine visionary interprets the relationship between orality and writing, authorship and audience, sexual identity and language.

Philo of Alexandria: On the Change of Names Michael Cover, 2024-01-15 In the treatise On the Change of Names, part of his magnum opus, the Allegorical Commentary, Philo of Alexandria brings his figurative exegesis of the Abraham cycle to its fruition. Taking a cue from Platonist interpreters of Homer's Odyssey, Philo reads Moses's story of Abraham as an account of the soul's progress and perfection. Responding to contemporary critics who mocked Genesis 17 as uninspired, Philo finds instead a hidden philosophical reflection on the ineffability of the transcendent God, the transformation of souls which recognize their mortal nothingness, the possibility of human faith enabled by peerless faithfulness of God, and the fruit of moral perfection: joy, divine prefigured in the birth of Isaac.

The Secret Life of Language Simon Pulleyn, 2018-08-30 This book looks at how language has evolved around the globe from ancestral proto-languages to our recognisable modern tongues. It demonstrates how language has been shaped by social and cultural influences and even explains how our anatomy affects the articulation and therefore evolution of words Discover the surprising stories behind the origin of the written word the difficulties of decipherment and the challenge of inventing from scratch languages such as Dothraki Combining expert analysis with accessible narrative and fun illustrations The Secret Life of Language makes even the complex topics of philology morphology and phonology easy to understand

Constance Scharff,Angela D. Friederici,Michael Petrides, The evolution of human language has been discussed for centuries from different perspectives Linguistic theory has proposed grammar as a core part of human language that has to be considered in this context Recent advances in neurosciences have allowed us to take a new neurobiological look on the similarities and dissimilarities of cognitive capacities and their neural basis across both closely and distantly related species A couple of decades ago the comparisons were mainly drawn between human and non human primates investigating the cytoarchitecture of particular brain areas and their structural connectivity Moreover comparative studies were conducted with respect to their ability to process grammars of different complexity So far the available data suggest that non human primates are able to learn simple probabilistic grammars but not hierarchically structured complex grammars The human brain which easily learns both grammars differs from the non human brain among others in how two language relevant brain regions Broca s area and superior temporal cortex are connected structurally Whether the more dominant dorsal pathway in humans compared to non human primates is causally related to this behavioral difference is an issue of current debate Ontogenetic findings suggest at least a correlation between the maturation of the dorsal pathway and the behavior to process syntactically complex structures although a causal prove is still not available Thus the neural basis of complex grammar processing in humans remains to be defined More recently it has been reported that songbirds are also able to distinguish between sound sequences reflecting complex grammar Interestingly songbirds learn to sing by imitating adult song in a process not unlike language development in children Moreover the neural circuits supporting this behavior in songbirds bear anatomical and functional similarities to those in humans In adult humans the fiber tract connecting the auditory cortex and motor cortex dorsally is known to be involved in the repetition of spoken language This pathway is present already at birth and is taken to play a major role during language acquisition In songbirds detailed information exist concerning the interaction of auditory motor and cortical basal ganglia processing during song learning and present a rich substrate for comparative studies The scope of the Research Topic is to bring together contributions of researchers from different fields who investigate grammar processing in humans non human primates and songbirds with the aim to find answers to the question of what constitutes the neurobiological basis of grammar learning Open questions are Which brain networks are relevant for grammar learning Is there more than one dorsal pathway one from temporal cortex to motor cortex and one to Broca s area and if so what are their functions Has the ability to process sequences of a given hierarchical complexity evolved in different phylogenetic lines birds primates other vocal production learners such as bats Is the presence of a sensory to motor circuit in humans a precondition for development of a dorsal pathway between the temporal cortex and Broca s area What role do subcortical structures Basal Ganglia play in vocal and grammar learning
