Speech Perception Production:

Speech Perception, Production and Linguistic Structure Yoh'ichi Tohkura, Eric Vatikiotis-Bateson, Yoshinori Sagisaka, 1992      Speech Production and Perception Mark Tatham, Katherine Morton, 2016-01-13 This book aims to develop a framework for a fully explanatory theory of speech production and speech perception It emphasises the difference between static models primarily descriptive and dynamic models that attempt to show how the basic linguistics and phonetics are related in an actual human speaker listener      Dynamics of Speech Production and Perception Pierre Divenyi, Steven Greenberg, Georg Meyer, 2006 Proceedings of the NATO Advanced Study Institute on Dynamics of Speech Production and Perception Il Ciocco Lucca Italy 23 June 6 July 2006 T p verso      The Initiation of Sound Change Maria-Josep Solé, Daniel Recasens, 2012-07-18 The origins of sound change is one of the oldest and most challenging questions in the study of language The goal of this volume is to examine current approaches to sound change from a variety of theoretical and methodological perspectives including articulatory variation and modeling speech perception mechanisms and neurobiological processes geographical and social variation and diachronic phonology This diversity of perspectives contributes to a fruitful cross fertilization across disciplines and represents an attempt to formulate converging ideas on the factors that lead to sound change This book is addressed to scholars in historical linguistics linguistic typology and phonology as well as to researchers in speech production and perception cognition and modeling Given the theoretical and methodological interest of the contributions as well as the novel instrumental techniques applied to the study of sound change this volume will interest professionals teaching language typology laboratory phonology sound change phonetics and phonological theory at the graduate level      Perception and Production of Fluent Speech Ronald A. Cole, 2016-07-28 Originally published in 1980 this title looks at the mental processes involved in producing and understanding spoken language Although there had been several edited volumes on speech in the previous ten years this volume was unique in that it deals exclusively with perception and production of fluent speech The chapters in this volume contributed to by distinguished scientists from psychology linguistics and computer science deal with such questions as How are ideas encoded into sound How does a speaker plan an utterance How are words recognized What is the role of knowledge in speech perception In short how do people communicate with each other using speech      Speech Perception, Production and Acquisition Huei-Mei Liu, Feng-Ming Tsao, Ping Li, 2020-09-14 This book addresses important issues of speech processing and language learning in Chinese It highlights perception and production of speech in healthy and clinical populations and in children and adults This book provides diverse perspectives and reviews of cutting edge research in past decades on how Chinese speech is processed and learned Along with each chapter future research directions have been discussed With these unique features and the broad coverage of topics this book appeals to not only scholars and students who study speech perception in preverbal infants and in children and adults learning Chinese but also to teachers with interests in pedagogical applications in teaching Chinese as Second Language      Modularity and the Motor theory of Speech Perception Michael Studdert-Kennedy, Ignatius G. Mattingly, 2014-01-02 A compilation of the proceedings of a conference held to honor Alvin M Liberman for his outstanding contributions to research in speech perception this volume deals with two closely related and controversial proposals for which Liberman and his colleagues at Haskins Laboratories have argued forcefully over the past 35 years The first is that articulatory gestures are the units not only of speech production but also of speech perception the second is that speech production and perception are not cognitive processes but rather functions of a special mechanism This book explores the implications of these proposals not only for speech production and speech perception but for the neurophysiology of language language acquisition higher level linguistic processing the visual perception of phonetic gestures the production and perception of sign language the reading process and learning to read The contributors to this volume include linguists psycholinguists speech scientists neurophysiologists and ethologists Liberman himself responds in the final chapter      Speech Perception and Production in L2 Elena Kkese, 2022-02-22 This book is concerned with studying speech perception and production in an L2 It deals with segments syllables and features above syllable level the suprasegmental level The volume brings together careful theoretical and empirical research conducted in different countries including the United States of America Greece Northern Cyprus Canada the Republic of Cyprus Israel and Spain

Abstract Studies of speech processing have generally made the implicit assumption that typically developed speakers can distinguish all sounds of their mother tongue in perception and production As such individual differences in speech processing is usually studied with speakers differing in training experience Strait Kraus 2011 or populations with developmental disorders Facchetti et al 2010 and few investigations have been conducted without the effects from training experience among typically developed individuals However sociolinguists have long recognized that native speakers vary in their ability to discriminate speech sounds in their language and enormous variability exists especially during a sound change in progress Taking the opportunity of an on going tone merging in Hong Kong Cantonese this thesis aims to systematically investigate individual differences of native speech perception production and their relationships with cognitive functions among typically developed speakers Three participant groups were recruited who presented respectively the pattern of good perception and good production of all Cantonese tones Per Pro that of good perception of all tones but poor production of specifically the T2 T5 distinction Per Pro and that of poor perception and production of specifically the T2 T5 distinction Per Pro Behavioral and neural measures of tone perception included reaction time discrimination sensitivity index and components of event related potentials ERPs the mismatch negativity MMN P3a and rise time of amplitude envelope Acoustic measurements were used to evaluate tone production in terms of both pitch and amplitude rise time Components of attention and working memory in auditory and visual modalities are assessed with published cognitive test batteries The results show that apart from the expected differences in accuracy and discrimination sensitivity of tone perception both Per Pro and Per Pro took significantly longer to discriminate between tones than Per Pro As for the performance in production besides the differences in pitch offset both Per Pro and Per Pro showed decreased differentiation in rise time between the two rising tones in production compared with Per Pro With respect to the brain responses reflected in the MMN and P3a to pitch deviations among tones Per Pro showed smaller and slower responses than one or both of the other two groups but Per Pro and Per Pro did not differ from each other However both Per Pro and Per Pro showed weaker neural responses compared with Per Pro to the rise time of T5 In addition Per Pro was poorer in tasks pertaining to the ability of attention switching shifting regardless of modality than one or both of the other two groups but Per Pro and Per Pro did not differ from each other Further correlation and regression analyses reveal that both pitch contour height and rise time contributed to distinctive perception and production of rising tones measures of perception behavioral and neural and production were correlated with each other and attentional shifting in visual and auditory modalities significantly predicted performances of discrimination and production Taken together the findings of the present study suggest that attentional switching

Speech Perception, Production and Acquisition Huei-Mei Liu, Feng-Ming Tsao, Ping Li, 2020-09-15 This book addresses important issues of speech processing and language learning in Chinese It highlights perception and production of speech in healthy and clinical populations and in children and adults This book provides diverse perspectives and reviews of cutting edge
