

Hypothesis test for the population mean: t test using the p value method

Tammy recently switched her primary doctor to one specializing in caring for elderly patients. On her new doctor's website, it says that the mean systolic blood pressure among elderly females is 115 millimeters of mercury (mmHg). Tammy believes the value is actually higher. She bases her belief on a recently reported study of 14 randomly selected, elderly females. The sample mean systolic blood pressure was 128 mmHg, and the sample standard deviation was 23 mmHg.

Assume that the systolic blood pressures of elderly females are approximately normally distributed. Based on the study, at the 0.10 level of significance, can it be concluded that  $\mu$ , the population mean systolic blood pressure among elderly females, is greater than 115 mmHg?

Perform a one-tailed test. Then complete the parts below.

Carry your intermediate computations to three or more decimal places. (If necessary, consult a table of areas.)

(a) State the null hypothesis  $H_0$  and the alternative hypothesis  $H_1$ .

$$H_0: \mu \leq 115$$

$$H_1: \mu > 115$$

(b) Determine the type of test statistic to use.

T-test statistic

(c) Find the value of the test statistic. (Round to three or more decimal places.)

$$2.115$$

(d) Find the p-value. (Round to three or more decimal places.)

$$0.027$$

(e) Can it be concluded that the mean systolic blood pressure among elderly females is greater than 115 mmHg?

Yes

$$\mu = 115$$

$$df = 14 - 1 = 13$$

$$\bar{x} = 128$$

$$\sigma = 23$$

$$n = 14$$

$$\frac{128 - 115}{\frac{23}{\sqrt{14}}} \approx 2.115$$

$$P(t > 2.115 \text{ with } df = 13) \approx 0.027$$

Environmental Studies and Toxicology, Committee for Review of the DOD's Enhanced Particulate Matter Surveillance Program Report, 2010-08-23. Soldiers deployed during the 1991 Persian Gulf War were exposed to high concentrations of particulate matter PM and other airborne pollutants. Their exposures were largely the result of daily windblown dust, dust storms, and smoke from oil fires. On returning from deployment, many veterans complained of persistent respiratory symptoms. With the renewed activity in the Middle East over the last few years, deployed military personnel are again exposed to dust storms and daily windblown dust, in addition to other types of PM such as diesel exhaust and particles from open pit burning. On the basis of the high concentrations observed and concerns about the potential health effects, DOD designed and implemented a study to characterize and quantify the PM in the ambient environment at 15 sites in the Middle East. The endeavor is known as the DOD Enhanced Particulate Matter Surveillance Program (EPMSP). The U.S. Army asked the National Research Council to review the EPMSP report. In response, the present evaluation considers the potential acute and chronic health implications on the basis of information presented in the report. It also considers epidemiologic and health surveillance data collected by the USACHPPM to assess potential health implications for deployed personnel and recommends methods for reducing or characterizing health risks.

National Vital Statistics Reports, 2016 Action Research in Criminal Justice Inge Vanfraechem, Ivo Aertsen, 2017-09-14. To understand how people experience justice and security is a challenging task in times of unrest marked by growing perceptions of insecurity, discrimination, and uncertainty. The European project ALTERNATIVE aimed to understand justice and security experiences related to conflicts in intercultural settings when citizens are given the means to actively contribute to these processes. This book relates how the project was set up as an action research through the concrete description of four action sites: social housing estates in Vienna, Austria; a small community in Hungary with a Roma population; three border towns in Serbia; and three communities in Northern Ireland. These four sites have been compared through an innovative methodology which leads to a deeper understanding of the impact of participatory and restorative justice oriented processes and in a more general way of what action research may entail in the criminological field. Bringing together researchers and case studies from around Europe, this book examines the scientific potential of action research as a methodology in criminal justice settings. This book is one of two volumes resulting from the work by a group of researchers in six European countries having cooperated intensively during four years in ALTERNATIVE, an action research project funded under the EU Seventh Framework Programme.
