Statistics, Testing, and Defense Acquisition National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Commission on Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on National Statistics, Panel on Statistical Methods for Testing and Evaluating Defense Systems, 1998-06-08 For every weapons system being developed the U S Department of Defense DOD must make a critical decision Should the system go forward to full scale production The answer to that question may involve not only tens of billions of dollars but also the nation s security and military capabilities In the milestone process used by DOD to answer the basic acquisition question one component near the end of the process is operational testing to determine if a system meets the requirements for effectiveness and suitability in realistic battlefield settings Problems discovered at this stage can cause significant production delays and can necessitate costly system redesign This book examines the milestone process as well as the DOD s entire approach to testing and evaluating defense systems It brings to the topic of defense acquisition the application of scientific statistical principles and practices Statistics, Testing, and Defense Acquisition National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Commission on Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Panel on Statistical Methods for Testing and Evaluating Defense Systems, 1999-08-17 The Panel on Statistical Methods for Testing and Evaluating Defense Systems had a broad mandate to examine the use of statistics in conjunction with defense testing This involved examining methods for software testing reliability test planning and estimation validation of modeling and simulation and use of modern techniques for experimental design Given the breadth of these areas including the great variety of applications and special issues that arise making a contribution in each of these areas required that the Panel s work and recommendations be at a relatively general level However a variety of more specific research issues were either brought to the Panel s attention by members of the test and acquisition community e g what was referred to as Dubin s challenge addressed in the Panel s interim report or were identified by members of the panel In many of these cases the panel thought that a more in depth analysis or a more detailed application of suggestions or recommendations made by the Panel would either be useful as input to its deliberations or could be used to help communicate more individual views of members of the Panel to the defense test community This resulted in several research efforts Given various criteria especially immediate relevance to the test and acquisition community the Panel has decided to make available three technical or background papers each authored by a Panel member jointly with a colleague These papers are individual contributions and are not a consensus product of the Panel however the Panel has drawn from these papers in preparation of its final report Statistics Testing and Defense Acquisition The Panel has found each of these papers to be extremely useful and they are strongly recommended to readers of the Panel s final report

Innovations in Software Engineering for Defense Systems National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Committee on Applied and Theoretical Statistics, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and

Education, Committee on National Statistics, Oversight Committee for the Workshop on Statistical Methods in Software Engineering for Defense Systems, 2003-10-22 Recent rough estimates are that the U S Department of Defense DoD spends at least 38 billion a year on the research development testing and evaluation of new defense systems approximately 40 percent of that cost at least 16 billion is spent on software development and testing There is widespread understanding within DoD that the effectiveness of software intensive defense systems is often hampered by low quality software as well as increased costs and late delivery of software components Given the costs involved even relatively incremental improvements to the software development process for defense systems could represent a large savings in funds And given the importance of producing defense software that will carry out its intended function relatively small improvements to the quality of defense software systems would be extremely important to identify DoD software engineers and test and evaluation officials may not be fully aware of a range of available techniques because of both the recent development of these techniques and their origination from an orientation somewhat removed from software engineering i e from a statistical perspective The panel s charge therefore was to convene a workshop to identify statistical software engineering techniques that could have applicability to DoD systems in development History of operations research in the United States Army, V. 3, 1973-1995 ,
