The current annual population growth rate of 3.2% in Africa will double the population by the year 2025. The majority of this population is below 15 years of age, and Africa concurrently also has the highest incidence of infertility in the world. Sexual behaviour, which has been poorly studied in Africa, has a direct impact on reproductive health [including fertility, infertility and sexually transmitted diseases (STDs)]. The multiple cultures and religions which characterize the African continent also affect reproductive health. Factors that have a significant effect on reproductive health in Africa include greater prevalence of extramarital/commercial sexual activity, polygamy, lower prevalence of contraceptives, reliance on traditional practices, high incidence of STDs and teenage pregnancies. High risk reproductive behaviours are predominantly displayed by adolescents, and the prevalence of STDs, including HIV (human immunodeficiency virus), is very high in this group. Pregnancy-related complications are the major cause of health-related problems in 15–19 year old girls. Maternal mortality rates in most countries remain high. Literacy rates affect these behaviours. It is apparent that changing the sexual behaviour of adolescents is one way of reversing the adverse trends, such as STD transmission, unwanted pregnancy and poor general reproductive health.

Introduction

Limited research data have been published on sexual behaviour in Africa, and much of this information has been obtained in urban centres (Bertrand et al., 1991; Carael et al., 1991; Bassett et al., 1992; Rutenberg et al., 1994; Borgdorff et al., 1995). Many of these studies have focused on specialized groups such as factory workers and commercial sex workers (CSW). Furthermore, studies of sexual behaviour in this continent have shown a great variability between the different study sites. As reported in other countries (Carael et al., 1991), it is evident that the data generated from completed questionnaires are generally unreliable (Barton, 1991; Haygens et al., 1996). Central to this issue is the dilemma of obtaining accurate information on a domain of sensitive personal experience considered private in African culture (Ankrah, 1989; Packard and Epstein, 1991).

The general area of sexual behaviour in Africa gathered momentum in the 1980s when three key conferences were held in Nairobi (Kenya). The first one, the 'Nairobi Women's Conference' (1985), clearly demonstrated that women's health had been grossly neglected in the drive for improved primary care. Efforts were being directed at oral rehydration and child immunization while African women were still dying in their thousands from complications of pregnancy [World Health Organisation (WHO), 1996]. The second conference, on 'Safe Motherland' (1987), outlined the serious consequences of maternal mortality and morbidity. It was reported that up to half a million women were dying each year owing to pregnancy and childbirth related complications. It was accepted that avoidance of early teenage pregnancies and good child spacing would make a major impact on saving the lives of women and children, in addition to improving their general health. The third conference, on 'Better Health for Women and Children through Family Planning' (1987), presented outstanding data on the association between the use of contraceptives and reproductive health of women. It was clear that unwanted pregnancies were responsible for some 25–30% of

Status Of Women And Reproductive Behaviour:

Human Reproductive Behaviour Laura Betzig, Monique Borgerhoff Mulder, Paul Turke, 1988-03-31      Analysis of Changing Rural Women's Reproduction Behavior Patterns in South Africa Zanele Mfono, Zn Mfono, 2008-12-31 This report presents a description of the patterns of change in rural women's reproductive behaviour in South Africa over a period of 17 years extending from 1987-9 to 2004. The analyses were informed by the Programme of Action that was set out at the 1994 International Cairo Conference on Population and Development. The Programme of Action has a 20 year implementation time period and the year 2004 was halfway through the 20 years. The year 2004 is also 30 years since the introduction of South Africa's National Family Planning Programme in 1975 which advanced the health rationale for fertility regulation. It is also twenty years after the introduction of the Population Development Programme in 1985 which emphasized the demographic rationale for fertility regulation. It is finally the seventh year after the introduction of the Choice on Termination of Pregnancy Act in 1997 which legalized pregnancy terminations under prescribed conditions with emphasis on women's rights to choice. Five of South Africa's nine provinces which have more than 50 per cent of their populations living in tribal areas were included in the analyses.      Socio-economic Status of Women and Fertility Harvinder Kaur, 2005 Study on fertility behavior of women of Patiala City Punjab      Welfare, the Family, and Reproductive Behavior National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Commission on Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Committee on Population, 1998-07-12 The design of welfare programs in an era of reform and devolution to the states must take into account the likely effects of programs on demographic behavior. Most research on welfare in the past has examined labor market issues although there have also been some important evaluations of the effects of the Aid to Families with Dependent Children Program on out-of-wedlock childbearing. Much less information is available on other issues equally central to the debate including effects on abortion decisions, marriage and divorce, intrafamily relations, household formation and living arrangements. This volume of papers contains reviews and syntheses of existing evidence bearing on the demographic impacts of welfare and ideas for how to evaluate new state level reforms.      Women's Education & Fertility Behaviour United Nations. Department for Economic and Social Information and Policy Analysis. Population Division, 1995      Dynamics of Population and Family Welfare, 1981      Ecology J. L. Chapman, M. J. Reiss, 1999 This is a comprehensive textbook for A level students and first year undergraduates taking courses in biology, geography and Earth sciences.

Population and Women United Nations. Department for Economic and Social Information and Policy Analysis. Population Division, 1996 A new highly relevant volume for the 90's beyond. We are presented with all the papers, the report, the recommendations of the United Nations Meeting on Population Women held in Gaborone, Botswana which will be invaluable for all our futures. The book will be an extremely useful tool for research on women. Population will also make a significant contribution to the work of the United Nations in that area.      Partnership and Reproductive Behaviour in

Low-fertility Countries United Nations. Department of Economic and Social Affairs. Population Division, 2003 The number of countries where the total fertility rate is below 2.1 children per woman increased more than ten fold during the last four decades This report focuses on the influence of marital or partnership behaviour on fertility levels and trends resulting in below replacement fertility Social trends considered include increasing cohabitation higher age of first marriage higher proportions of never married women over age 30 and the rapid fall in the marriage rate in the 1990s While all low fertility societies share fundamental societal features many of their socio economic and cultural features vary and thus shape the differences of demographic characteristics
