Managing Knowledge at the Canadian Forest Service Albert J. Simard, Canadian Forest Service. Science Branch, 2000 This document provides a foundation on which a knowledge infrastructure can be built for the Canadian Forest Service and an initiative put forward The first part describes the technological social forestry and organizational context that surrounds knowledge management at the Service The concepts of the information society and knowledge economy are interpreted according to how they influence knowledge management at the institutional level This is followed by an examination of the nature characteristics of forestry knowledge and an overview of the Service's organizational structure within which the knowledge infrastructure will be developed The second part develops a model of knowledge management and proposes a three dimensional framework for a Canadian Forest Service knowledge infrastructure The final part addresses the establishment of a Canadian Forest Service knowledge initiative and presents an overview discussion for the development of a strategic plan

This is Paradise Michael Andrew Den Otter, Thomas Mark Beckley, Atlantic Forestry Centre, 2002 This report examines both subjective objective social indicators of community sustainability in the Western Newfoundland Model Forest with a specific focus on the communities of Corner Brook Pasadena Lark Harbour and Rocky Harbour as these are representative of the region's community types The objective measures are in the form of Canadian

Census data and the subjective measures come from personal interviews with community residents Six key indicators are used to assess community sustainability population employment income human capital poverty and real estate The findings are synthesized in discussions of resource dependence the differences in what the indicators show for each of the communities and the contrasts between what the subjective objective indicators show

The North American Mosaic Commission for Environmental Cooperation (Montréal, Québec). Secretariat, 2001 The North American Mosaic has four overarching features First it is to the extent feasible based on comparable information on the status and trends of major indicators of the state of the environment in Canada Mexico and the United States Second the report confirms that these three countries together make up an incredibly complex dynamic and interconnected ecosystem in which humans play a dominant and decisive role Third the report raises important and sometimes disquieting questions concerning the sustainability of some current trends Finally the report is a reminder that our economic social and physical well being are utterly dependent on the life sustaining services provided by nature This report emphasizes the importance of developing mutually compatible economic social and environmental goals and policies across the three country region

Transboundary Protected Areas Urami Manage Goodale, 2003-05-30 Top researchers share their expertise on conservation and sustainability in areas that extend across national borders This informative and insightful book examines strategies being used by governments and NGOs to protect wild areas that cross national borders and cultural linguistic and socioeconomic boundaries In addition to presenting case studies from five continents Transboundary Protected Areas The Viability of Regional Conservation Strategies provides several theoretical overviews that suggest viable approaches to conserving biodiversity in these difficult to protect areas From the editors Historically the borders of protected areas have been defined by convenient social political or proprietary boundaries rather than by ecological boundaries Today many scientists and practitioners are in agreement that the world's biodiversity and other natural resources can best be conserved on an ecosystem or regional scale which may or may not be consistent with political boundaries Efforts to protect land on an ecosystem scale have led to the creation of numerous transboundary protected areas also referred to as international peace parks or transfrontier conservation areas These areas which often cross linguistic socioeconomic and cultural boundaries as well as national borders represent regional conservation at its most complex While many scientists and practitioners promote eco regional approaches to conservation many also advocate pursuing conservation goals on local or community scales Conservationists therefore endeavor to achieve a seemingly incongruous mandate to pursue top down regional goals using bottom up local approaches Transboundary Protected Areas The Viability of Regional Conservation Strategies addresses the vital questions associated with this mandate Is it reasonable and realistic to approach regional conservation this way What strategies have been employed to achieve these goals and how successful have they been Who benefits from transboundary conservation and what are the costs Reflecting the information delivered at the 2001 conference of the Yale chapter of the International Society of Tropical Foresters ISTF this book provides you with the best answers available at this time The contributors include social and natural scientists resource managers policymakers and community leaders Transboundary Protected Areas The Viability of Regional Conservation Strategies brings them together for an interdisciplinary exploration of these questions and other critical issues related to conservation in and around transboundary protected areas Specific cases that are thoughtfully examined in Transboundary Protected Areas The Viability of Regional Conservation Strategies include the public reaction to the Yellowstone to Yukon Y2Y Conservation Initiative the ways in which the establishment of southern Africa s existing and proposed Transfrontier Conservation Areas TFCAs can help conserve biodiversity aid socioeconomic development and promote international peace development and conservation efforts in the Maloti Drakensberg mountains of southern Africa which straddle the borderlands between South Africa and Lesotho the cultural aspects of protected area management in Venezuela and Guyana the impact of transfrontier collaboration as evidenced by the International Gorilla Conservation Programme IGCP in the Virunga Bwindi region of Africa Uganda Rwanda and the Democratic Republic of Congo how the Nepalese have addressed the problems of poaching commercial logging illegal harvesting and smuggling of forest products and illegal trade of wildlife and wildlife products in the eastern Himalayas by implementing a transboundary biodiversity conservation initiative Helpful maps tables and figures make geographical regions and conservation information easy to assimilate
