IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776

The United States of America

We the People of the United States, in Order to...

IN CONGRESS

United States of America

We the Representatives of the United States of America, do hereby declare...

IN CONGRESS, 1776. A unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America

When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such Principles and organizing its Powers in such Manner, as shall seem to them to be most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, in such a Case, would dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that even the most arduous struggle for Liberty may be carried on with more safety and less bloodshed, than would be necessary to overthrow a Government that has become destructive of the ends for which it was instituted. — But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same System of Oppression, shall have assumed a Character that requires us to regard them as a Design to reduce us to absolute Tyranny, it is our Duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for our future Security. — Such has been the patient Sufferance of these Colonies, that they have been obliged to declare their Independence.

Recognition of States in International Law Pavle Kilibarda, 2024-08-03 Although the recognition of States is a common occurrence in international relations and retains a central position in discussions of international law its nature and legal effects have remained controversial well into the twenty first century While some believe that recognition plays a fundamental role in the creation of statehood others deny recognition any legal value Regardless debates surrounding any case where statehood is disputed will sooner or later turn to the matter of recognition or lack thereof by other States This book challenges the widespread views of statehood as an absolute or empirical fact and of recognition as merely declaratory in the creation of States as the primary and original persons of international law Drawing upon a comparative analysis of contested States ranging from Palestine and Kosovo to Somaliland and Eastern Ukraine this book seeks to ascertain the normative value and the effects of the act of recognition in various situations distinguishing between cases where statehood may be inferred from applicable rules of international law cases where statehood could only be explained by recognition and cases where the establishment of a State is prevented by international legal norms In addition to discussing a range of issues related to recognition this book provides an up to date overview of the history of recognition the positions of various governments and a broad critical summary of domestic and international jurisprudence
