Ethnic Literary Traditions in American Children's Literature M. Stewart,Y. Atkinson,2009-11-23 Esteemed contributors expand the range of possibilities for reading understanding and teaching children s literature as ethnic literature rather than children s literature in this ambitious collection Native American Writers Harold Bloom,Sterling Professor of Humanities Harold Bloom,2010 Presents a collection of critical essays analyzing modern Native American writers including Joy Harjo Louise Erdrich James Welch and more Studies in the Literary Achievement of Louise Erdrich, Native American Writer Brajesh Sawhney,2008 This work is a collection of critical essays on the fiction and scholarship of one of Native America s most loved and respected writers Drawing on her Chippewa and German American heritage Erdrich has produced a body of work whose pervasive mythical landscape and the cast of interconnected characters has been credited with bringing Native American literature to the literary mainstream and inspiring an entire generation of Native American writing. Her eleven North Dakota novels constitute a web of complex absorbing narratives documenting familial political and social histories over a century of tumultuous change. Erdrich's blending of Native oral and western traditions demand multilayered critical approaches. The essays relate to different issues relevant to her fiction in particular the categorization of her work as Native American but also questions about genre, gender, structure, narrative voice, authorship and the ethics and politics of fiction labeled as Native American. Peter G. Beidler's essay for example investigates the use of medical terms as source of humor in Four Souls. Tom Matchie in his essay explores parallels between use of grotesque in Erdrich and Flannery O'Connor. Alan R. Velie examines dialectics of the Indian aesthetics and western literary forms in her fiction. Annette Van Dyke in her study of Agnes Damien's role in The Last Report shows how the reader's perspectives change with a change in Agnes's role. Deborah L. Madsen and Barbara Hiles Mesle explore Erdrich's fiction from the perspective of trauma theory in the Native American context. Harry J. Brown's essay on the function of naming in her fiction. Holly Messitt in his comparative study of early American captivity narratives and Erdrich's fiction. David T. McNab in his study of death and dying in her fiction all hint at the possibility of scholarship that Erdrich's fiction can spawn.

Dialogism or Interconnectedness in the Work of Louise Erdrich Marta J. Lysik, 2017-05-11 This study portrays how Louise Erdrich's writing extends Bakhtin's concepts of dialogism and the novel through an investigation of a selection of her works as well as her practices of writing, co-writing, re-writing and reading novels. Erdrich's hallmark dialogic literary style and practice encompasses writing a series of books, re-cycling protagonists, narrators, events, themes and settings, re-writing previously published novels employing heteroglossia and polyglossia, co-authoring texts, blogging about books, translating different epistemologies for different audiences and spotlighting families as the main thematic concern in dialogue with her own parenting experiences as depicted in her memoirs. She writes a growing series of novels, compost pile like, capitalizing on former novels as well as adding new elements and new stories in the process. Thus a dialogic intra-textual microcosm emerges. Erdrich suffuses her writing with an incessant quality of changing and becoming. Her novels resist closure while protagonists return and demand attention and the author answers dialogically by penning new tales. Erdrich's writing can be accessed because it concerns shared human experiences and relationships, both their ambivalence and their beauty. Erdrich includes instead of alienating, sympathizes instead of judging, which makes her an internationally acclaimed author with her work crossing topographies, epistemologies and identities.
