But what accounts for the incredible longevity of dinosaurs? A renowned scientist now provides a startling explanation that is rewriting the history of the Age of Dinosaurs. Dinosaurs were pretty amazing creatures, real life monsters that have the power to fascinate us. And their fiery Hollywood ending only serves to make the story that much more dramatic. But fossil evidence demonstrates that dinosaurs survived several mass extinctions and were seemingly unaffected by catastrophes that decimated most other life on Earth. What could explain their uncanny ability to endure through the ages? Biologist and earth scientist Peter Ward now accounts for the remarkable indestructibility of dinosaurs by connecting their unusual respiration system with their ability to adapt to Earth's changing environment, a system that was ultimately bequeathed to their descendants, birds. By tracing the evolutionary path back through time and carefully connecting the dots from birds to dinosaurs, Ward describes the unique form of breathing shared by these two distant relatives and demonstrates how this simple but remarkable characteristic provides the elusive explanation to a question that has thus far stumped scientists. Nothing short of revolutionary in its bold presentation of an astonishing theory, Out of Thin Air is a story of science at the edge of discovery. Ward is an outstanding guide to the process of scientific detection. Audacious and innovative in his thinking, meticulous and thoroughly detailed in his research, only a scientist of his caliber is capable of telling this surprising story. The Four-Chambered Heart Anais Nin, 2012 The Four Chambered Heart Anais Nin's third title in the Cities of the Interior series of novels is one of Nin's most compelling books with well-defined characters. Djuna, Rango, and Zora's rhythmic waves of tension and a powerful climax. Based on Nin's own relationship with the Peruvian radical Gonzalo More and his wife, Helba. The Four Chambered Heart examines how each of us experiences love in our own way and how we are sometimes forced by social mores to compartmentalize one relationship in order to preserve the other. Nin's use of symbolism has never been more effective: the river Seine represents the immutable force of life; the houseboat is the elusive dream; the shore is reality; and a doll found by a fisherman represents the part of Djuna that has committed suicide to allow the rest of her to grow. Djuna's torturous journey with Rango and Zora arrives at a conclusion that is bitter yet critical to her survival as a woman seeking an understanding of how the exterior world affects the interior. Very rarely did midnight strike in two hearts at once; very rarely did midnight arouse two equal desires and that any dislocation in this any indifference was an indication of disunity of the difficulties the impossibilities of fusion between two human beings. This new authoritative edition contains Nin's introduction, character descriptions, publishing history and an author's chronology. From the Four Chambered Heart Marie Lecrivain, 2013-01-01 Chambers's Encyclopædia
