Strangers Always:

Depending on Strangers David P Levine, 2021-03-01 We live in a world where our livelihood depends on our ability to relate to strangers The central quality that defines strangers is that they are unknown Because strangers are unknown they represent in the world outside the unknown self within The unknown self is the core of the personality considered as a potential to become something yet to be determined To be already known is to be determined prior to and independently of our presence in our lives At the outset of the process of taking form the individual is in a sense a stranger to self and to others The more this is the case the greater the openness of the process of self formation and the more marked the role of freedom from predetermination in that process Freedom from predetermination exists along three dimensions the free movement of thoughts and ideas or inner freedom the freedom to relate which is also the freedom not to relate and freedom in relating which is the possibility of maintaining secure self boundaries in relations with others In exploring freedom understood in this way Professor Levine considers such topics as the nature of inner freedom and its relationship to deliberation and choice stranger anxiety and its connection to group dynamics and social connection the internal factors that enable us to make the decisions that shape our lives and through our actions realize the ends embedded in our decisions how our memories shape our thought processes and therefore the choices we make and the lives we lead that result from them what makes it possible for us to live comfortably with and depend on people we do not know concern for the welfare of strangers and how our welfare can be secure in a world where we do not care about others and they do not care about us

God's Perfect Gift to All People Lowell Kavan, 2025-10-28 This book was written in easy to understand language about how God will give the gift of heaven to everyone It explains the origin and fallacy of hell Many churches teach that people who do not put their faith in Jesus while living here on earth will be sent to hell by God after they die to suffer forever Most churches also teach that God has given humans free will to decide for themselves if they want to believe in God But if God loves us and desires our salvation why would He give us free will knowing that many of us would be so foolish as to reject Him and destroy ourselves Is it possible that the church's teaching on hell is not true If God is all knowing and all powerful isn't He smart enough to come up with a better plan than free will so that everyone can be saved This book explains how God did come up with a better plan that allows everyone to be saved Learn why God's judgment is not a time of punishment but a time of correction when God holds all people accountable for sin while at the same time uses His sovereign love to change the hearts of all people so that they will have a desire to repent and put their faith in Jesus for salvation This book answers many questions you have about God such as Is there really a hell The author uses many passages in the Bible to support his point of view Read this book to come to know the true God and be set free from the fear of hell replacing it with the joy and truth of God's perfect plan of eternal life in heaven that He plans to give to everyone
