Close to a billion library visits are made each year and more children join summer reading programs than little league baseball. Public libraries are local institutions as different as the communities they serve. Yet their basic services, techniques and professional credo are essentially similar and they offer through technology and cooperative agreements myriad materials and information far beyond their own walls. In Civic Space Cyberspace Redmond, Kathleen Molz and Phyllis Dain assess the current condition and direction of the American public library. They consider the challenges and opportunities presented by new electronic technologies changing public policy, fiscal realities and cultural trends. They draw on site visits and interviews conducted across the country, extensive reading of reports, surveys and other documents, and their long standing interest in the library's place in the social and civic structure. The book uniquely combines a scholarly, humanistic and historical approach to public libraries with a clear-eyed look at their problems and prospects including their role in the emerging national information infrastructure. The Cumulative Book Index, 1999 Subject Guide to Books in Print, 2001
