Isser,1974-07-31 Public opinion had roots in the nineteenth century with the develop ment of industrialization What is this public It is the mass of individuals who comprise a society or a nation this mass in turn is divided into many groups which have their own interests prejudices and beliefs A govern ment whether democratic or not is well aware of the power of public opinion and is anxious to measure and shape it All three branches of government may direct and educate public thinking using the instruments of propaganda Propaganda is any idea and action designed to influence the views and actions of others Today s means of propaganda are books newspapers radio movies television public schools and lastly the rostrum Molders of opinion believe that words sounds and pictures accomplish little unless they are carefully organized and integrated into a well conceived plan Once this is accomplished the ideas conveyed by the words will become part of the people themselves Special techniques such as the employment of fear and the play on prejudices have been used quite successfully by modern states to impose their own dogmas and policies Because the social scientist has been aware of the study of public opinion he may have concluded that it was a modern innovation but governments have always been concerned with public opinion though not always understanding it and have attempted to influence it Adult
