The Development of Australian Literature (Classic Reprint) Henry Gyles Turner, 2016-06-14 Excerpt from The Development of Australian Literature Australian Literature begins to assume some definiteness of form Though still of utter immaturity it is gathering a certain individuality of its own and asserts its usefulness in its own department and after its own fashion During half a century it has had of necessity to be judged entirely by an alien standard the test being always what the English reader was likely to think of it what an English critic would be inclined to say of it But now less frequently do we ask what other people have to say about Australian literature we are growing more and more concerned to know what it is that Australian literature has to say to ourselves And of a certainty we begin to realize that its writers though their rank is far from the very highest have a power of raising in Australian minds emotions that are peculiar and agreeable and such as are not elsewhere by us to be attained About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
