The Literary Channel The Inter National Invention Of The Novel Translation Transnation:

The Literary Channel Margaret Cohen, Carolyn Dever, 2002-01-15 In the Channel zone the novel developed through interactions among texts readers writers and translators that inextricably linked national literary cultures It served as a forum to promote and critique nationalist clichés whether from the standpoint of Enlightenment cosmopolitanism the insurgent nationalism of colonized spaces or the non nationalized culture of consumption In the process the Channel zone promoted codes that became the genre's hallmarks including the sentimental poetics that would shape fiction through the nineteenth century

Noble Sentiments and the Rise of Russian Novels Hilde Hoogenboom, 2025-04-30 Noble Sentiments and the Rise of Russian Novels rewrites the history of nineteenth century Russian novels Hilde Hoogenboom examines how Russians created a new literature against substantial odds 90 per cent of novels published in Russia through the 1850s were foreign Using data from eighteenth and nineteenth century catalogues Hoogenboom visualizes readers large appetite for translated sentimental and sentimental realist novels many by such internationally renowned women as Madame de Genlis Sophie Cottin and George Sand The book reveals that contrary to stereotypes of emotional excess Sentimentalism was a tenacious opportunistic chameleon that allowed writers to both challenge and reaffirm the social order Russian writers used European novels as they sought to understand themselves and the challenges of their position as hereditary service nobles in charge of an empire with fifty million serfs Together noblemen and noblewomen adapted the fundamental European literary conversation on a sentimental moral education in duty to the greater good to their search for a life of purpose Hoogenboom's study sheds new light on Karamzin Zhukovsky Pushkin Turgenev Goncharov Dostoevsky and Tolstoy and introduces readers to major authors Evgeniia Tur and Nadezhda Khvoshchinskaja Their debates and rivalries with each other and with European novelists gave birth to an exciting influential literature

The Making of Barbarians Haun Saussy, 2022-05-10 A groundbreaking account of translation and identity in the Chinese literary tradition before 1850 with important ramifications for today Debates on the canon multiculturalism and world literature often take Eurocentrism as the target of their critique But literature is a universe with many centers and one of them is China The Making of Barbarians offers an account of world literature in which China as center produces its own margins Here Sinologist and comparatist Haun Saussy investigates the meanings of literary translation adaptation and appropriation on the boundaries of China long before it came into sustained contact with the West When scholars talk about comparative literature in Asia they tend to focus on translation between European languages and Chinese Korean and Japanese as practiced since about 1900 In contrast Saussy focuses on the period before 1850 when the translation of foreign works into Chinese was rare because Chinese literary tradition overshadowed those around it The Making of Barbarians looks closely at literary works that were translated into Chinese from foreign languages or resulted from contact with alien peoples The book explores why translation was such an undervalued practice in premodern China and how this vast and prestigious culture dealt with those outside it before a new group of foreigners Europeans appeared on the horizon

Translation Multiples Kasia

Szymanska,2025-05-27 A new genre of writing demonstrating that translation is neither a transparent medium nor a secondary form of literature In Translation Multiples Kasia Szymanska examines what happens when translators poets and artists expose the act of translation by placing parallel translation variants next to one another in a standalone work of art presenting each as a legitimate version of the original Analyzing such translation multiples as a new genre of writing Szymanska explores how an original text can diverge into variants how such multiplicity can be displayed and embraced and how the resulting work can still be read as a coherent text To do so she focuses on contemporary projects in two different contexts Anglophone experimental practices and post 1989 Poland s emergence into democracy while viewing them against the backdrop of twentieth century cultural and political developments Szymanska first takes a broad look at Anglophone global culture debunking the myth of translation as a transparent medium and an unoriginal secondary form of writing She then turns to postcommunist Poland where projects introducing multiple translation variants with different ideological readings offered an essential platform for pluralist political discussion She examines in particular an elaborate metatranslation of La Marseillaise a triple rendering of Anthony Burgess s novel A Clockwork Orange and a quadruple book of Bertolt Brecht s poetry with distinct readings by four translators She argues that the creators of such multiples want to tell their own stories personal critical visual or political Showing why multiple translations matter Szymanska calls for a redefined practice of reading translations that follows the ethics of the multiple

Recognizing the Romantic Novel Jillian Heydt-Stevenson, Charlotte Sussman, 2008 The Romantic era was a vibrant and exciting time in the history of the novel Yet aside from a few iconic books for example Pride and Prejudice or Frankenstein it has been ignored or dismissed by later readers and critics Bringing this rich but neglected body of works to the fore Recognizing the Romantic Novel challenges us to rethink our ideas of the novel as a genre as well as our long held assumptions about the literary movement of Romanticism
