international dimension of the culture of Flanders and the Netherlands The Low Countries contributes to a lively dialogue between differing cultures This edition focuses on love in every shape and form From courtly love to love for animals From Plato to porn From the idyll to the Waste Land From refined and courteous to crude and down to earth ILLUSTRATIONS 300 colour illustrations TLC - The Low Countries 18 Luc Deoldere, 2011-01-14 TLC The Low Countries is a yearbook which aims to inform the English speaking world about the culture of Flanders and the Netherlands The articles in this yearbook survey the living contemporary culture of the Low Countries as well as their cultural heritage In its words and pictures The Low Countries provides information about literature and the arts but also about broad social and historical development in Flanders and the Netherlands The culture of Flanders and the Netherlands is not an isolated phenomenon its development over the centuries has been one of continuous interaction with the outside world In consequence the yearbook also pays due attention to the Low Countries and the world beyond their borders By drawing attention to the diversity vitality and international dimension of the culture of Flanders and the Netherlands The Low Countries contributes to a lively dialogue between differing cultures This edition focuses on South Africa and its links with the Low Countries South Africa has links with the Netherlands or more precisely with the VOC the Dutch East India Company On 6 April 1652 three ships commanded by Jan van Riebeeck landed in Table Bay where they were to establish a revictualling station for VOC ships rounding the Cape of Good Hope on their way to Batavia This issue of the yearbook discusses South Africa and the Low Countries how do they view each other nowadays A South African writer rides her bike through the flat Flemish countryside and notes down what she sees and what happens to her A Flemish and a Dutch writer who know and love South Africa give their candid opinion We think about Common Cultural Heritage that is not always shared A South African strip cartoonist is inspired by the clear lines of Tintin The painter Marlene Dumas has long belonged to the world but South Africa is still very much alive within her ILLUSTRATIONS 300 colour illustrations The Low Countries , The Low Countries , 2010   , The Low Countries. Arts and Society in Flanders and the Netherlands. 2015. Turning Tides Luc Devoldere, 2015 Everything is water claimed Thales of Miletus around 600 BC Some assert that this statement was the beginning of philosophy Water is life All life comes from the water The land is what is left behind by the sea The Low Countries and the Netherlands in particular know all about that They have been won from the sea But that victory is never definitive In this book we take a closer look at water in all its forms and at that specific sea of ours You can travel the length of the Belgian coast by tram from De Panne to Knokke You can sail from Vlissingen to Texel We wonder whether the ports of Rotterdam and Antwerp could coordinate their activities but perhaps as far as China is concerned Zeebruges Ghent Terneuzen and Vlissingen are just hubs of one and the same megaport offering access to Europe There is a portfolio of pictures too showing what people do on the wide sandy beaches of the Low Countries in their summer hours of idleness The great pirates of the past are also honoured Today Somali pirates raise the problem of the lawlessness of the sea Today we still need an international law of the sea especially where pollution and overfishing are concerned With regard to the latter however what food can we still obtain from our North Sea And finally there s no sea without seascapes and poems of course a flood of words to conjure up the roar of the surf the eternal lapping of the waves 0And the tides They keep on turning
