Technics Civilization:

Technics and Civilization Lewis Mumford, 2010-10-30 Technics and Civilization first presented its compelling history of the machine and critical study of its effects on civilization in 1934 before television the personal computer and the Internet even appeared on our periphery Drawing upon art science philosophy and the history of culture Lewis Mumford explained the origin of the machine age and traced its social results asserting that the development of modern technology had its roots in the Middle Ages rather than the Industrial Revolution Mumford sagely argued that it was the moral economic and political choices we made not the machines that we used that determined our then industrially driven economy Equal parts powerful history and polemic criticism Technics and Civilization was the first comprehensive attempt in English to portray the development of the machine age over the last thousand years and to predict the pull the technological still holds over us today The questions posed in the first paragraph of Technics and Civilization still deserve our attention nearly three quarters of a century after they were written Journal of Technology and Culture Technics and Civilization Lewis Mumford, 1965

Technics and Civilization Lewis Mumford, 1963 Traces the evolution of the machine and describes its effects on man and his environment History of Technology Volume 22 Graham Hollister-Short, 2016-09-30 The technical problems confronting different societies and periods and the measures taken to solve them form the concern of this annual collection of essays History of Technology Volume 22 deals with the history of technical discovery and change and explores the relation of technology to other aspects of life social cultural and economic and shows how technological development has shaped and been shaped by the society in which it occurred Published under the auspices of the Institute of Historical Research University of London Science and Technology in World History James Edward McClellan, Harold Dorn, 2006-04-14 Publisher description The Imperfect City: On Architectural Judgment Professor Samir Younés, 2012-09-01 If architectural judgment were a city a city of ideas and forms then it is a very imperfect city When architects judge the success or failure of a building the range of ways and criteria which can be used for this evaluation causes many contentious and discordant arguments Proposing that the increase in number and intensity of such arguments threatens to destabilize the very grounds upon which judgment is supposed to rest this book examines architectural judgment in its historical cultural political and psychological dimensions and their convergence on that most expressive part of architecture namely architectural character It stresses the value of reasoned judgment in justifying architectural form a judgment based on three sets of criteria those criteria that are external to architecture those that are internal to architecture and those that pertain to the psychology of the architect as image maker External criteria include philosophies of history or theories of modernity internal criteria include architectural character and architectural composition while the psychological criteria pertain to mimetic rivalry or rivaling desires for the same architectural forms Yet although architectural conflicts can adversely influence judgment they can at the same time contribute to the advancement of architectural culture Library of Congress
