Tools, Not Rules Tommy Thomason, Geoff Ward, 2010 If you want to start an argument in a teachers lounge bring up the topic of how best to teach grammar There is a wide spectrum of opinion Traditionalists claim that we must explicitly teach grammar Students drill the basics and diagram sentences Sometimes their study and drills take the place of writing but these teachers claim that good writing demands good grammar At the opposite end of the spectrum are teachers who claim that the best way to learn grammar is to write thereby being forced to use grammar in writing and editing They reason that students will learn grammar in the context of actually using it without all the drills and worksheets They trust the writing process to instill an appreciation for grammar instead of actually teaching it Teachers on the write to learn grammar side claim that students who are only taught grammar rules might pass tests but since they didn't learn in the context of writing they typically don't apply the rules when they write Grammar traditionalists say students in writing classes never learn grammar at all because it is not explicitly taught In Tools Not Rules authors Tommy Thomason and Geoff Ward take the middle ground position that grammar should be taught as part of the writing process Tommy Thomason is a veteran journalist and university journalism professor at TCU Geoff Ward is a well known Australian professor and associate dean from James Cook University in Townsville Both have written several books and work extensively with American teachers Publisher's website <http://www.eloquentbooks.com> ToolsNotRules TeachingGrammarInTheWritingClassroom.html

Ben Nasr, 2016-10-25 Essay from the year 2016 in the subject Didactics for the subject English Grammar Style Working Technique Misurata University School of Education course English Language Teaching language English abstract There has been much debate in the last 20 years about the most effective way of acquiring grammatical structures of a second language The so called Inductive Approach has benefited students in terms of mastering rules and learning about different structures In the context of EFL university students in Libya the so called Inductive Approach has proved to be successful in making students practice the language inside the classroom but not outside it It is clear that students are encouraged to be accurate rather than fluent My main argument is that the instructions provided by the inductive approach are still not able to reflect effectively the natural learning environment This might be the result of teaching Grammar outside the context I will argue for that teaching Grammar through context is quite critical in helping students perform more naturally outside the classroom even though communicative activities are randomly selected
