Gregg,2012-12-06 A critical review of the literature on written expression disorders of individuals with learning disabilities The purpose of the book is to shed light on issues concerning definition assessment and interaction for individuals with writing disorders The integrated model of written expression offered draws on the work of cognitive psychology neurolinguistics and sociolinguistics The model illustrates the interrelationship between cognitive and affective processing networks that influence the selection and use of linguistics and information structures in producing a written text Particularly noteworthy aspects of this book are the emphasis on the role of writing in developing higher mental functions other texts on writing disorders have placed greater emphasis on lower order aspects not only the addition and integration of the sociolinguistic dimension into the model of writing but also the inclusion of guidelines for assessing this dimension specification of needed research in which both populations and tasks have been carefully defined and finally notice of the importance of a continuum for defining assessing and treating each component of written expression This state of the art work on disorders of writing is of interest to both researchers and clinicians concerned with written expression disorders in children and or adults

Teaching Writing in Chinese Speaking Areas Mark Shiu-Kee Shum,De-lu Zhang,2005-11-23 One of the most civilized nations in history China has a long standing writing tradition and many Chinese texts have become world treasures However the way the Chinese teach writing in various countries in contemporary times is little known to the outside world especially in Western countries Undoubtedly the Chinese have had an established traditional method of writing instruction However recent social and political developments have created the perception amongst both practitioners and researchers of a need for change Whilst certain socio political changes both in Mainland China and in the territories acted as agents for reform of the teaching of composition the shape these reforms are taking has been due to many different influences coming both from inside the countries themselves and from foreign sources Mainland China Hong Kong Taiwan and Singapore have each developed their own approach to the teaching of composition

Numerous prior edition chapters have been completely rewritten. Children and Learning Difficulties (Thoroughly Revised Edition, 2023) Onita Nakra, 2023-08-14. This book is written to enable educators and parents to understand the nature of learning disability so they in turn can transform the capabilities of their students. Many children have difficulties learning in school and college but not all are learned disabled. A specific learning disability occurs when difficulty with reading writing or mathematics actively interferes with the learning process. Most learning disabled individuals are bright, intelligent and creative yet may struggle in reading writing or arithmetic. This book discusses how to identify the exact nature of the learning disability outlines procedures for assessment and diagnosis and suggests methods that have proven to be effective. Practical guidelines and resources are available for teachers educators and parents. Anyone working with a learning disabled individual will find this book an invaluable resource and tool. Children with dyslexia and other learning disabilities do become contributing adults head corporations and institutions and make remarkable achievements in diverse fields. The diagnosis of a learning disability is no longer a stigmatising label but a stamp that upholds the child's uniqueness. Written in clear simple language the book is an absolute must for parents educators and other concerned individuals who want to jumpstart their child's educational future. Resources in Education, 1996. The Word-Method David Greenberger, 1891

School Education, 1884. How Children Learn to Write. Bulletin, 1953 Helen K. Mackintosh, Wilhelmina Hill, 1953. Written expression is a skill greatly needed by children and adults as a means of communication in their daily living. In this bulletin there are suggestions for the teacher who wants to use sound methods in teaching children to express themselves in writing. The authors attempt to show that language arts is an important part of the total school program that is good for children and that it contributes to other learning activities. The purpose of this bulletin is to show teachers and parents that the development of written expression is a continuous process which begins simply with young children and adds to their skills during each year of their elementary school lives. The material is organized around some of the questions that teachers and parents ask about how children learn to express themselves in writing. The six most important questions are discussed: 1. What is the place of writing in the total school program? 2. Why do children need to write? 3. How do children learn to express themselves in writing? 4. What part do handwriting and spelling play in written expression? 5. What opportunities do children have to write in purposeful situations? and 6. How can children be encouraged to do creative writing? A bibliography is included. Contains 13 footnotes. Best copy available has been provided. Building Writing Skills Kelly Speer
