

Sponsored Research Labs

Besides the above academic programmes, a number of research labs mostly funded by the research grants from outside agencies are engaged in cutting-edge research in specialized fields. Various Research Groups use the sponsored research labs as well as centralized computational facilities of the Institute (Refer Fig.1) to carry out advanced research in different technical/scientific areas.

The research activities of these labs are led by the faculty members working in the relevant fields. The students across all programmes often work on research projects offered by these labs. In the following, the list of research labs, its activities, and the faculty member/members associated with it are furnished. A faculty member interested in the research activities of the lab may join.
