The Making Of Literature:

The Making of Literature Rolfe Arnold Scott-James, 1999 The Making of Literature (Some Principles of Criticism Examined in the Light of Ancient and Modern Theory) R. A. Scott-James, 1973-01-01 The Making of Literature Scott-James, 2014-08-31 Paper and the Making of Early Modern Literature Georgina Wilson, 2025-09-30

Paper and the Making of Early Modern Literature explores the crucial role of paper in the early history of books and of English literature. Taking up four paradigms of literary scholarship: authorship, composition, form, and reuse, Georgina Wilson shows how the material affordances of paper shaped the work of readers, writers, and critics of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Looking past the surface of printed texts to less legible forms of labor, Wilson models literary critical readings of paper's physical aspects from watermarks to rotatable paper dials in Ben Jonson's Sejanus His Fall and George Withers's emblems, sheets, and fragments. Turning from paper's specific physical attributes to authors who were preoccupied with its imaginative potential, Wilson explores how paper's tangible qualities intervened in what readers and writers did with it, tracing formalist, legal, and political debates on the textual and nontextual uses of paper through the works of John Taylor and eighteenth-century narratives. Drawing upon examples from early modern drama, poetry, and prose to consider the real and imagined women and men who made and used paper, Wilson demonstrates how early modern paper was both the product of embodied labor and of the early modern imagination. Bringing together close reading, critical bibliography, archival research, and literary theory, Paper and the Making of Early Modern Literature shows how paper makes literature not only as a physical object but also as a discipline.

The Making of Modern Children's Literature in Britain Lucy Pearson, 2016-03-03

Lucy Pearson's lively and engaging book examines British children's literature during the period widely regarded as a second golden age. Drawing extensively on archival material, Pearson investigates the practical and ideological factors that shaped ideas of good children's literature in Britain, with particular attention to children's book publishing. Pearson begins with a critical overview of the discourse surrounding children's literature during the 1960s and 1970s, summarizing the main critical debates in the context of the broader social conversation that took place around children and childhood. The contributions of publishing houses, large and small, to changing ideas about children's literature become apparent as Pearson explores the careers of two enormously influential children's editors: Kaye Webb of Puffin Books and Aidan Chambers of Topliner Macmillan. Brilliant as an innovator of highly successful marketing strategies, Webb played a key role in defining what were, in her words, the best in children's books, while Chambers' work as an editor and critic illustrates the pioneering nature of children's publishing during this period. Pearson shows that social investment was a central factor in the formation of this golden age and identifies its legacies in the modern publishing industry, both positive and negative.
