studies and records are presented and discussions of theory are secondary to actual records of supervision. Different cases are given as examples showing the process of recording analysis of the student's skills and monitoring of progress to the minimum required professional standards. More clarification on the problem of their roles is then explained. This reference is suitable for social workers, public service administrators and to some extent for public health workers who interact with members of the community.

Munson, 1979-04-01 A comprehensive view of historical and current approaches to social work supervision which includes one of the most extensive bibliographies ever compiled on the subject. In this overview of historical and current approaches to social work supervision topics range from the first documented origins of supervision to the field's future trends with special emphasis on organizational authority and the increasingly controversial issue of professional autonomy. Recent social work reports such as the Munro Review into Child Protection 2011 identified poor supervision as a barrier to good and effective social work practice and highlighted the need for quality supervision to become embedded within departments. This book demonstrates how both managers and their staff can engage with supervision with a view to successful outcomes. There are detailed sections on audit tasks and reflection questions to enable readers to increase awareness of their role as well as develop action plans for improvement in their practice.

Supervision in Social Work Liz Beddoe, Jane Maidment, 2017-10-02 Supervision is currently a hot topic in social work. The editors of this volume both social work educators and researchers believe that good supervision is fundamental to the development and maintenance of effective practice in social work. Supervision is seen as a key vehicle for continuing development of professional skills, the safeguarding of competent and ethical practice and oversight of the wellbeing of the practitioner. As a consequence the demand for trained and competent supervisors has increased and a perceived gap in availability can create a call for innovation and development in supervision. This book offers a collection of chapters which contribute new insights to the field. Authors from Australia and New Zealand where supervision inquiry is strong offer research informed ideas and critical commentary with a dual focus on supervision of practitioners and students. Topics include external and interprofessional supervision, retention of practitioners, practitioner resilience and innovation in student supervision. This book will be of interest to supervisors of both practitioners and students and highly relevant to social work.
