The Historian As Detective:

The Historian as Detective Robin W. Winks, 1969 Essays by noted historians of the past and present on the problems of investigation offer a series of intriguing case studies in the relationship between historical research and detective fiction

The Detective as Historian Ray B. Browne, Lawrence A. Kreiser, Jr, 2013-02 Readers of detective stories are turning more toward historical crime fiction to learn both what everyday life was like in past societies and how society coped with those who broke the laws and restrictions of the times. The crime fiction treated here ranges from ancient Egypt through classical Greece and Rome from medieval and renaissance China and Europe through nineteenth century England and America. Topics include Ellis Peter's Brother Cadfael, Umberto Eco's Name of the Rose, Susanna Gregory's Doctor Matthew Bartholomew, Peter Heck's Mark Twain as detective, Anne Perry and her Victorian era world, Caleb Carr's works and Elizabeth Peter's Egyptologist adventurer tales.

The Historian as Detective , 1968    The Historian as Detective

Robin W. Winks (ed), 1970    The Detective as Historian Ray Browne, Lawrence Kreiser, 2009-03-26 Deeper understanding of history is enhanced by encasing it in art and interest. Crime fiction is one of the widest and most rapidly growing forms of literature. Historical crime fiction serves effectively the double purpose of entertaining while it teaches. The truth of the narrative account the editors of this volume believe is dependent on the understanding of human nature reflected in the author who writes the narrative. Historical crime fiction the editors of this volume write has an obligation and a golden opportunity. It must bring the past up to the present through the device of timeless crime and it must take the reader into the world about which is being written so that the characters are alive and the events interesting and challenging. Professional writers of fiction need to be more effective than mere authors of dates and assumed motivations. Therefore they can fill in human motivations and drives where no records exist and can aid the professional historians in what historian David Thelen calls the challenge of history which is to recover the past and interpret it for the present. The essays in this volume accept the challenge and make major accomplishments for meeting it.

Contemporary Feminist Historical Crime Fiction R.

Johnsen, 2006-08-19 By examining the feminist interventions of contemporary women writers working in this subgenre Johnsen advances the existing critical discussion of women's crime fiction. The writers studied here bring research expertise to bear on their chosen historical settings creating a powerful but widely accessible statement about women in history.

Nazi Germany and the Holocaust in Historical Crime Fiction Anthony Lake, 2023-07-24 This is the first book length academic study of the portrayal in contemporary historical crime fiction of Nazi Germany and the Holocaust and their legacies. It discusses novels written by five authors: David Downing, Philip Kerr, Luke McCallin, Joseph Kanon, and David Thomas. Their work belongs to a subgenre of the historical crime novel that has emerged since the late 1980s to become a significant body of writing located at the intersection of crime fiction and Holocaust literature. The readings of these novels explore questions of form and genre to ask how popular fiction might approach the Holocaust. Themes of resistance and complicity and the relationship between them and problems of guilt and responsibility are also discussed This book also explores questions of justice to show how these novels explore social and moral justice and vengeance and revenge as alternatives to ordinary legal justice after the Holocaust
