The History and Poetry of Finger-Rings \(Classic Reprint\) Charles Edwards, 2015-07-13. Excerpt from The History and Poetry of Finger Rings. The history of finger rings is more abundant than the poetry which is chiefly connected with the ceremonies and observances in which they figure. What this history is Mr Edwards has indicated in the gossipy pages which follow and which contain a world of curious information. Interesting in themselves they are valuable for their references which enable the reader to verify the statements of Mr Edwards and to pursue his line of study farther than he has chosen to do. He will find many particulars in regard to rings of all sorts among the different people by whom they have been worn in ancient and modern times and of the important part they have played in the history of the world. He will also find many allusions to them in the poets but not so many poems of which they were the inspiration as he might have expected for the simple reason that such poems do not exist. The small orbit of the wedding ring as a nameless old poet satirically calls it has seldom proved large enough for genius to revolve in. Mr Edwards quotes but one marriage poem, Thee Mary with this ring I wed which he fails to trace to its author, the Rev. Samuel Bishop who has written nothing else that is worth remembering.
