The Hours Spent In Fishing:

Estimating Economic Values for Nature Vincent Kerry Smith, 1996-06 Estimating Economic Values for Nature presents in one volume a collection of V Kerry Smith's papers prepared over 25 years dealing with the theory and practice of non market valuation for environmental resources. Taken together the papers explore the conceptual basis the implementation process and empirical performance of all available methods of measuring economic values for the services of nature and how these values are constructed from people's choices. The issues discussed in this volume include travel cost, recreation demand, averting behaviour, household production, hedonic property value, hedonic wage and contingent valuation methods. These essays describe what has been learned from past benefit analysis using meta analysis as well as the issues at the frontier of current research in the area. This important volume will be welcomed by environmental and public economists as well as practitioners of cost benefit analysis as an authoritative and comprehensive discussion of non market valuation.

Guide for improved monitoring of anchored fish aggregating device catches and improved assessment of anchored fish aggregating device impacts on stocks in the Western Central Atlantic Fishery Commission (WECAFC) region

Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, Vallès, H.; Taconet, M., 2025-04-01 This guide is mainly aimed at national, local fishery authorities and researchers involved in developing and implementing fishery data collection systems. It first describes recent efforts in improving fishery data collection systems involving aFADs in the WECAFC region with focus on the Eastern Caribbean. It then builds on such efforts to propose a way forward that hinges on the potentially transformative power of information and communications technology (ICT) tools to address past and current data deficiencies. It is expected that the full uptake and implementation of many of the monitoring and data collection recommendations provided here will be incremental and will require a phased approach for adoption.

Limited Situations J. F. Caddy, G. P. Bazigos, 1985 The main categories and uses of fisheries related information by fisheries administrations for stock assessment resource management investment planning and economics analysis and for social and nutritional studies are briefly discussed in this document and the appropriate scale of these activities is illustrated using as example the constraints faced by fisheries administrators of small island states in funding and manpower in the fisheries sector Special emphasis is placed on the types of data that can be collected by fisheries officers and which already exist and are available to them from other sources Mapping current information on the resources the fishermen and their employment status the seasonality of the fishing operations the type and number of boats and gear used location of wharfs landing sites markets shore plant and boat repair and building facilities not to mention catches and other biological information and the main routes for transshipment and import export of fish products is a necessary first step towards considering the type and scale of statistical monitoring and in designing a filing and monitoring system for the fishery In planning such a system of work the administrator will have to ensure that the fisheries officer coordinates with other organizations collecting relevant data in order to make optimal use of existing manpower Collection methods based on the interview approach and sampling surveys may have to be used with care and emphasis given instead to the commissioning of data gathering by key individuals data sources outside the government and strategically located within the fishery system and to the use of simple logbooks or sales slips which may be legislated as a requirement for licensing of fishermen or dealers The field activities of officers should where possible follow a present sampling design in order to maximize utility of these observations
