The Human Meaning of Social Change Angus and Converse, Philip E. Campbell, Angus Campbell, Philip E. Converse, 1972-03-30 This book is a companion piece to Sheldon and Moore's Indicators of Social Change. Whereas Indicators of Social Change was concerned with various kinds of hard data typically sociostructural this book is devoted chiefly to so-called softer data of a more social psychological sort: the attitudes, expectations, aspirations and values of the American population. The book deals with the meaning of change from two points of view. First it is interested in the human meaning which people attribute to the complex social environment in which they find themselves their understanding of group relations, the political process and the consumer economy in which they participate. Secondly it discusses the impact that the various alternatives offered by the environment have on the nature of their lives and the fulfillment of those lives. The twelve essays which make up the volume deal successively with the major domains of life. Each author sets forth an inclusive statement of the most significant dimensions of psychological change in a specific area of life to review the state of present information and to project the measurements needed to improve understanding of these changes in the future. Problems of Culture and Cultural Values in the Contemporary World Unesco, 1983

Individual Development and Social Change John R. Nesselroade, Alexander von Eye, 1985 Individual Development and Social Change Explanatory Analysis represents a convergence of three lines of emphasis now visible in developmental research and theory building. The three are 1 the life course as a focus for the study of development and social change and their interrelationships 2 the life span orientation to the study of individual development with its acknowledgment of the salience of contextual features for understanding development and 3 the growth of methodological innovations that provide more appropriate and powerful ways of exploiting data gathered to describe an
