The Human Thing Marc Cogan, The Human Thing Marc Cogan,1981 Rhetorical Adaptation in the Greek Historians, Josephus, and Acts vol.I John M. Duncan,2022-10-24 Greco Roman rhetorical theorists insist that speakers must adapt their speeches to their audiences in order to maximize persuasiveness and minimize alienation Ancient historians adorn their narratives with accounts of attempts at such rhetorical adaptation the outcomes of which decisively impact the subsequent course of events These depictions of speaker audience interactions moreover convey crucial didactic persuasive insights to the historians own audiences This monograph presents a detailed comparative analysis of the intra and extra textual functions of speeches and audience responses in Greek historiography Josephus and Acts with special emphasis on Luke s distinctive depiction of the apostles as adaptable yet frequently alienating orators This is volume I of a set of two volumes Love of Glory and the Common Good Michael Palmer,1992-01-29 More clearly than any previous work on the subject Michael Palmer s Love of Glory and the Common Good defines the relationship between Periclean democracy and the decline in Athenian political life that followed the death of Pericles The author elaborates upon the views of Thucydides who saw the subsequent tyrannical rule of Alcibiades and the accompanying disintegration of Athenian political life as a logical consequence of the defects in the speeches and deeds that Pericles used to inspire the Athenian people With careful attention to details in the order and structure of Thucydides narrative Palmer shows this historian as a political thinker of the first rank who deserves the same careful study accorded to Plato and Aristotle What Moves Man Annette

Freyberg-Inan,2012-02-01 The realist theory of international relations is based on a particularly gloomy set of assumptions about universal human motives Believing people to be essentially asocial selfish and untrustworthy realism counsels a politics of distrust and competition in the international arena What Moves Man subjects realism to a broad and deep critique Freyberg Inan argues first that realist psychology is incomplete and suffers from a pessimistic bias Second she explains how this bias systematically undermines both realist scholarship and efforts to promote international cooperation and peace Third she argues that realism s bias has a tendency to function as a self fulfilling prophecy it nurtures and promotes the very behaviors it assumes predominate human nature Freyberg Inan concludes by suggesting how a broader and more complex view of human motivation would deliver more complete explanations of international behavior reduce the risk of bias and better promote practical progress in the conduct of international affairs Vox Petri Gene L. Green,2019-11-12 Peter stands at the beginning of Christian theology Christianity s central confessions regarding the person of Jesus the cross salvation the inclusive nature of the people of God and the end of all things come to us through the apostle who was not only the church s leader but also its first theologian Peter is the apostle for the whole church and the whole church resonates with his theology We sing his song though we may not have glanced at the bottom of the page in the hymnbook to see who wrote the words and composed the tune Peter is the lost boy of Christian theology a person overlooked as a theological innovator and pillar
