

How does an historian look at historical evidence?

- Looks at WHO wrote something and tries to determine the reliability of the facts and determine any bias.
- Looks at evidence through an historical context.
- Historians look for all sides of the story and they recognize when only one side of the story has been told.

An Essay* Emmanuel Twum Mensah,2016-03-17 Essay from the year 2016 in the subject History Miscellaneous Kwame Nkrumah University of Science and Technology Department of History and Political Studies course Ba Hisotry language English abstract The reconstruction of the past has always been dependent on evidence from events of the past This means that history cannot be written without evidence Evidence used in history can be defined as materials that gives signs or proofs of the existence of historical events However the accumulation of evidence alone doesn t make history as they must be supported with interpretation by the historian The relationship between the historian and the evidence used in historical deconstruction is one of the major themes in history today Historical reconstructing can be explained as studying history at its most basic level and value as used in the question means the significance of the evidence in historical explanation of past events This essay seeks to explain why the evidence used in historical deconstruction owes its value to the interpreter of sources with three main points namely it is the historian who pick the evidence the historian interprets the evidence and it is the historian who organizes and present the evidence to his readers A history of the Scottish people from the earliest times Thomas Napier Thomson,1893 Smith College Studies in History ,1917 Municipal Government and Land Tenure Herbert Baxter Adams,1886 The Ancient History of the East Philip Smith,1891
