We appreciate your support of the preservation process and thank you for being an important part of keeping this knowledge alive and relevant.

The History of Normandy and of England Francis Palgrave, 2015-06-25 Excerpt from The History of Normandy and of England Vol 3 My Dear Sir You have honoured me with your kind permission that I should explain in a few words addressed to yourself the circumstances in which the Third and Fourth Volumes of this History are now published. The Fourth Volume was printed throughout with exception of the Summary several years since. Some corrections in it were afterwards planned by my father but it represents on the whole his maturest judgment on the events narrated. The completion of the Third Volume postponed for personal reasons to the composition of the Fourth had formed the author's occupation during the leisure hours of the last four years of his life. Great part had been written previously and it was his wish to revise the whole incorporating in it the fruits of additional study and of visits to the scenes of the principal events described. Death however in July 1861 stayed his hand when this revision had been completed only to the end of Chapter III. From this point onwards Chapters IV to XV the book has been edited by me.
